COURT OF WARDS ACT AMENDMENT.

THE HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER presented the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Court of Wards Act, 1879, and in doing so he said there were only two points necessary to be noticed now. The minor alterations made by the Committee were sufficiently set out in the report. The first of the two points was the alleged discrepancy between the Indian Majority Act, passed by the Council of the Governor-General, and the Court of Wards Act of this Council. Before the matter was laid before the Select Committee an informal meeting was held, principally to discuss this question. It was purely a question of law, and it happened that, of the four legal gentlemen of whose assistance the Committee were able to avail themselves, two held one opinion as to the construction of a certain expression in the Indian Majority Act, and these were the two law officers of the Government, while two held the other opinion. The expression in the Majority Act was "every minor under jurisdiction of the Court of Wards." The opinion of the learned Advocate-General and of the Legal Remembrancer was that this expression in the Indian Majority Act embraced every minor upon whom that Court might stretch out its hands and take charge of his property, if, in the exercise of its discretion, it thought right to do so. If the view of these legal officers was correct, then the way in which the expression was used in the Majority Act had the effect of leaving the Court of Wards to declare whom they should consider to be minors for the purposes of that Act, and therefore there was no discrepancy between the two Acts and no alteration was required in the present Bill. On the other hand the two learned gentlemen opposite (Mr. Ameer Ali and Baboo Peary Mohun Mookerjee) were of opinion that the expression in question in the Indian Majority Act embraced only minors of whose person and property the Court had actually taken charge in the exercise of its discretional jurisdiction. If so, there was certainly some difficulty in reconciling the two Acts; but then this Council had not the power to clear up the doubt by putting an authoritative construction on the words of the Majority Act.

On these considerations, and giving that weight to the opinion of the law officers of Government, who happened to be agreed, which was officially due to them, the Select Committee had not thought it necessary to introduce any provision on this head into the present Bill.

The next point was that the Committee had omitted the proposed section 55A as unnecessary. It was the section by which MR. DAMPIER had proposed to give authority to the Court of Wards to allow any ward to bring a suit, as if that ward were not in charge of the Court. The consideration of this section led the Committee to look somewhat deeply into the general law, and the result was that it was held by those most competent to give an opinion, that, as the law stood, there was no necessity for a specific provision of the nature of the one he proposed; cases such as MR. DAMPIER had intended to meet were already met, Wards of Court, who are not minors, being already under the general law competent to institute certain suits independently of the Court of Wards, and the managers of their estate. That being the general effect of the law, it had not been found necessary to put in any provision to secure it.

He saw one point looming at a distance, regarding which he might perhaps have to propose an amendment. It was this. It had been represented that for the purpose of executing a certificate, the manager of a ward's estate was, under the Public Demands Recovery Act, in the position of a plaintiff decree-holder. Now, after a certificate had been made for the recovery of a certain sum due to the ward's estate, and before it was fully executed and satisfied, suppose the estate of that ward passed away from the jurisdiction of the Court, how was that certificate to be sued out? Who was then legally competent to take such steps as were necessary to go on executing it? That was a question which had been raised. He had in an informal way consulted two authorities on the subject; one said it was as clear as possible; the decree being made, the Collector could go on executing it even after the estate had passed out of its hands, and the Collector would make over the amount realized to the proprietor who had come into possession of the estate. The other legal luminary said it was palpable that the proprietor in possession of the estate was the successor in title to the manager, and that, under the general law, he would be entitled to take such steps as were necessary for executing these certificates.

This was purely a legal question, and MR. DAMPIER did not like to rush in where the angels feared to tread, and he proposed to give the subject further consideration and to obtain more formal opinions before the next meeting of the Council.

THE HON'BLE PEARY MOHUN MOOKERJEE said he had the honour of serving on the Select Committee, but he regretted that he could not agree with the learned law officers of the Government or of the majority of the hon'ble gentlemen of the Committee in thinking that the Court of Wards Act or the Indian Majority Act gave the Court of Wards any thing like a prospective jurisdiction with respect to persons who had passed the age of eighteen years and had not completed the age of twenty-one years. He thought that the standards of majority, fixed by the two enactments, related to classes of persons differently situated, and that they did not conflict with one another; but as the majority of the gentlemen who formed the Select Committee were of a contrary opinion, he subscribed to the report of the Committee. But since signing the report he had consulted the authorites on the subject, and he had been confirmed in his opinion by the rulings of the highest authorities, he meant of the Privy Council and of a full Bench of the High Court. He thought that a person after he had attained the age of eighteen years was beyond the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards. He stated this simply because he wished it to be understood that he did not subscribe to the opinion expressed in the 2nd paragraph of the report of the Select Committee.

The Hon'ble Amir Ali said that as he had the honour of serving on the Select Committee he might be allowed to say a few words to explain the dissent he had recorded. The reasons which compelled him to differ from his hon'ble colleagues were contained in his dissent, and he was not going to trespass at any length on the time of the Council. He was sorry to find the opinion of the law officers of Government were against him with reference to the meaning which was to be attached to the words "under the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards" in section 3 of the Indian Majority Act. They were of opinion that these words vested in the Court of Wards a prospective jurisdiction, and that consequently there was no conflict between the provisions of Act IX of 1875 and the Court of Wards Act The opinion of the law officers of the Government was entitled to the greatest weight, but he (Mr. Amir Ali) could not bring himself to agree in the view that the word "jurisdiction" in the Indian Majority Act had a different meaning from the word as used in other Acts. He thought a reference to some of the authorities mentioned already by his hon'ble friend (Baboo Peary Mohun Mookerjee) would show that in every instance in which the question had been discussed the term had been construed to imply an actual and not a prospective and possible jurisdiction. His hon'ble and learned friend the Legal Remembrancer had mentioned to him that in section 11 of the Court of Wards Act and Act XL of 1858 the word was used in the sense which Mr. Allen was inclined to put upon it, but a careful examination of the sections referred to by him had confirmed Mr. Ameer Ali in his conviction that the words "under the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards" meant under the actual jurisdiction or charge of the Court of Wards and did not include persons who had attained their majority under Act IX of 1875. The analogy which was sought to be drawn from the expression "jurisdiction of the civil court" did not appear to him to be correct. The jurisdiction of the civil court was an actual jurisdiction, exercised with reference to all persons and at all times. Everybody was subject to that jurisdiction unless specially exempted, whereas nobody was subject to the authority of the Court of Wards unless specially declared to be so or the charge of his or her property was taken by the Court of Wards

The Hon'ble Kristodas Pal said, lawyers, like doctors, differed; he did not profess to be a lawyer, but as a Member of the Select Committee, he took a common-sense view of the question raised. If there was a conflict between the law of the Indian Council and the Court of Wards Act, it was not in the power of this Council to remedy that conflict. The Select Committee had not touched the law one way or another, and had not therefore in any way added to the difficulties which might be at present experienced. Such being the case, he thought the paragraph which had been inserted in the report of the Select Committee would not in any way alter the present position of things. If the Government, in its executive capacity, thought that the two laws ought to be reconciled, it should move the Legislative Council of the Governor-General to amend the Majority Act. But in his opinion it was not competent for this Council to do anything in the matter.

The Hon'ble Mr. Dampier said, with reference to remarks which had just been made, that he entirely agreed with the Hon'ble Member who spoke last.

He observed that the Hon'ble and learned Member who spoke first said more than once that one of the constructions of the Indian Majority Act was held by the majority of the Members of the Select Committee, as well as by the law officers of Government. MR. DAMPIER begged leave to say that he had in this matter pinned his official faith on the opinion of the Government law officers.

He was satisfied that, whichever of the two constructions was correct, nothing that this Council was competent to enact would be of practical use. Any conclusion which he might arrive at as to the correct construction must therefore be a sterile conclusion, leading to no results. He had not therefore thought it necessary to examine the merits of the rival constructions as he would have done had any result depended upon his vote.

The HON'BLE MR. ALLEN said, as one of the Members of the Select Committee, and particularly as one of those by whose advice it acted, he thought it right to state why that Committee had determined to make no change in the Bill in respect to the matter under discussion, and the explanation lay in the answer to the question who was a minor under the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards. The difficulty arose not as to the meaning of any words in any Act passed by this Council, but as to the meaning of words used in the Indian Majority Act of 1875 which was passed by the Council of the Governor-General. The words of section 3 of that Act were—

"Subject as aforesaid, every minor of whose person or property a guardian has been or shall be appointed by any court of justice, and every minor under the jurisdiction of any Court of Wards shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Succession Act, or in any other enactment, be deemed to have attained his majority when he shall have completed his age of twenty-one years and not before."

The question was as to the meaning of the words "under the jurisdiction of any Court of Wards." The learned Advocate-General's opinion (and the only opinion which seemed to MR. ALLEN the correct opinion) as to the construction of these words was that a distinction must be drawn between the words "under the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards" and the words "under the charge of the Court of Wards." The opinion maintained by his friends on the opposite side appeared to him to depend entirely on the loose way in which the word "jurisdiction" was used in this country. Every person who had any functions to perform was said to have a "jurisdiction," and thus we heard of a dâk-runner's "jurisdiction" and a chowkidar's "jurisdiction," and other "jurisdictions" of a similar kind in which the word was used in a most slovenly manner. But the exact meaning of the word was to signify, prospectively, a possible control, thus every person was under the jurisdiction of that court which had the dictio juris—the right of declaring what was jus in cases in which he was concerned; therefore the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards must extend to those persons over whose affairs the court had a dictio juris, that is to say all those minors who held entire estates paying revenue direct to Government. The qualification therefore was that of every minor zemindar holding an entire estate whether his property had or had not been taken charge of, he was under the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards: and consequently the Committee could see no conflict between an Act of the Governor-General, which expressly, in the case of persons under the jurisdiction of the Court, extended the age of majority to twenty-one years, and an Act of this Council which stated that in the case of those subject to the Court of Wards, a minor was a person under twenty-one years of age. The expression "under the jurisdiction" occurred in another Act of the Governor-General in Council, namely Act XL of 1858 which made provision for the custody and protection of the property of minors not under the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards and who did not hold entire estates paying revenue to Government. Section 2 of that Act provided that the care of the persons of all minors (not under the protection of the Court of Wards) and the charge of their property should be "subject to the jurisdiction of the civil court." The expression in that section was almost identical with the expression in the Indian Majority Act, but MR. ALLEN never heard that the section was supposed to refer merely to persons whose property had been already taken charge of by the civil court: clearly, it contemplated the possibility of the property being taken charge of by the court, and not necessarily that it had been actually taken under it. It was not advisable to explain the meaning of the words in question by reference to an Act of this Legislature, because it might be said that it was not competent for this Council to amend or explain an expression used in an Act of the Council of the Governor-General. But a case had just been put in his hands which was relied upon by the hon'ble member opposite as giving the opinion of the Privy Council to the effect that the age of majority for all minors must be taken at eighteen years.* The point of the decision on which reliance was placed appeared to MR. ALLEN not to affect this question at all, except in a very remote way, and even there their Lordships of the Privy Council drew a distinction and based their decision on the express words of a Regulation. They said,—

* Jumoona Dassya vs. Bamasoondari Dassya I. L. R. 1 Calc. 289—295.

"The only remaining point was that taken by Mr. Doyne to the effect that although Govind Chunder may have been of the age of discretion according to the Hindu law as prevailing in Bengal, he was still a minor under the 2nd section of Regulation XXVI of 1793, and that under the 33rd section of the prior Regulation, X of 1793, he could not make the adoption without the consent of his guardian. The last-mentioned enactment prohibits a disqualified proprietor from making an adoption, except with the sanction of the Court of Wards, and it has been determined by the sudder court in the case cited—Anundmoyee Chowdrani vs. Sheeb Chunder Roy—(1) a case which afterwards came here, though not on the same point, (2) that the prohibition applies equally to an authority to adopt and to an actual adoption. But the words of the 33rd section of Regulation X of 1793 would seem to confine its operation to persons who are under the guardianship of the Court of Wards."

(1) S. D. A (1855), page 918.
(2) Section 9, Moore's I. A., 287.

This objection was overruled it is true, but the basis of their Lordships' opinion was that section 33 of Regulation X of 1793 limited the incapacity to those who were under the gua dianship of the Court of Wards, that is to those whose property was in charge of the Court of Wards and to whom the Court of Wards stood in the place of guardian. The judgment went on—

"And we have the judgment of Mitter, J., to the effect that where a minor is not under the Court of Wards but has attained years of discretion according to the Hindu law, he is capable of executing such an instrument as this. Rajendra Narain Lahooree vs. Saroda Soondaree Dabee (3). If, then, the case actually turned upon this point, their Lordships' opinion would have been that Govind Chunder was not incapacitated from executing this instrument by reason of his not having attained the age of eighteen years."

(3) 16 W. R., 548.

The question was not then, the validity of the adoption, but whether a disqualified landholder could execute an instrument giving power to adopt, and the Privy Council in thinking that he could, relied on the words of Regulation X of 1793 which limited the prohibition to adopt, to those persons who were actually under the guardianship of the Court of Wards. There therefore did not appear to MR. ALLEN to be any difficulty as to the meaning of the words "under the jurisdiction of the Court" in the Indian Majority Act, and even if there was, he did not see how this Council could in any way remove the obscurity, unless, indeed, it should declare that eighteen years was to be the age of majority of minors under the Court of Wards. But as he had already said he did not think there was any ambiguity in the words of the Indian Majority Act, and he thought it very desirable that the age of majority for proprietors of estates paying revenue direct to Government should not be reduced under twenty-one years.

AMENDMENT OF THE EXCISE ACT.

THE HON'BLE MR REYNOLDS presented the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend "The Bengal Excise Act, 1878." He said he did not propose at this meeting to ask the Council to take the Bill into consideration. He would only mention that he had since received a communication from which he found that the Board were not thoroughly satisfied with the 4th section of the Bill as it stood, and it was possible that at the next meeting of the Council he should have to propose some amendment of that section.

AMENDMENT OF THE CALCUTTA MUNICIPAL CONSOLIDATION ACT.

THE HON'BLE KRISTODAS PAL presented the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend "The Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act, 1876," and in doing so he said the modifications made by the Select Committee were fully set forth in the report, and he need not therefore trouble the Council with a detailed statement of the alterations made. It had been his misfortune to differ from his colleagues on some important points, but he would take an opportunity to notice them when the Bill would be brought up for settlement of its clauses. There were, however, one or two points which he might now notice. One of the most important objects of the Bill was to give power to the Commissioners to take up land for the reclamation of bustees. When he applied for leave to introduce the Bill, he endeavoured to explain the procedure under which a bustee might be reclaimed by the Corporation under the existing law. That procedure, he might say, was two-fold. First, the Commissioners were required to serve notice on proprietors of land, calling upon them to carry out certain improvements which might be recommended by their Sanitary Officer; these proprietors might be required to make roads within bustees for the admission of conservancy carts, to introduce drainage and water-supply, to lay out huts in proper order, and to make other sanitary arrangements. If the proprietors did not carry out the orders of the Commissioners, they were competent to carry out such improvements at the expense of the Municipality and to recover the expense afterwards from the owner. That was one procedure. The other mode of procedure was very much the same, with this difference, that the scheme of improvement was not to be brought into operation till the condemned bustee had been reported upon by two competent independent medical gentlemen. If the Health Officer reported a bustee to be particularly unhealthly, and if the Commissioners thought fit, they might call upon two independent medical men to report on the bustee. These gentlemen were required to set forth a scheme of improvement which might partially or wholly be adopted by the Commissioners, who were competent to require the owner to carry out all the improvements they might order. If the owner neglected to carry out the improvements, the Commissioners were competent to carry them out and to recover the cost from the owner. The expense might be so heavy that, perhaps in some cases, the proprietor of the bustee might not be able to meet it. It had therefore been considered hard to enforce the Act in cases in which the owner might be too poor, or might find the undertaking to be unremunerative. The best course in such cases, he thought, would be for the Municipality to take up the land and pay proper compensation to the proprietor. As Baboo Kristodas Pal had mentioned to the Council on the occasion he had referred to, he had pressed this point on the Council when the Municipal Act of 1876 was under consideration, so this was not the first time he ventured to bring the subject before the Council. At that time it was thought that the extensive powers given to the Commissioners by the Act might first be tried, and if they were found to be insufficient, they might be subsequently extended. When introducing the Bill, he read to the Council an extract from a letter of the Government, in which His Honour the present Lieutenant-Governor recommended that the Commissioners might take up land for the improvement of bustees, and sell or lease it as they thought fit in order to recoup themselves. The Commissioners had also come forward with the same suggestion in a letter to the Council, and accordingly provisions had been introduced in the Bill to give the Commissioners the necessary powers. The Select Committee had, however, so hedged in the provision as to prevent the Commissioners from arbitrarily exercising the power or embarking in land speculation. The amended Bill provided that no unhealthy area should be taken up by the Commissioners unless independent medical testimony was obtained as to the unhealthiness of the locality concerned. The bustee must be first reported upon, specially by two competent medical men before it could be included in any scheme of improvement by the Commissioners under the provisions of the Bill; the Commissioners would then consider the scheme of improvement recommended, and lay it before the Lieutenant-Governor for consideration and sanction, and after obtaining such sanction, might take measures to acquire the land. Within two years of the acquisition of the land, the Commissioners should either carry out the scheme of improvement at their own expense or make arrangements for carrying out the improvement by other persons. And within five years from the time of the commencement of the improvement, and seven years from the date of purchase of the land, the Commissioners must sell the land unless the time was extended by special order of the Lieutenant-Governor. So that the Commissioners would not be competent to hold the land they might purchase for the profit of the Corporation: this provision of the Bill would act as a check upon the acquisition and improvement of land, for, as fast as the Commissioners might acquire or improve any land, they would be bound to sell it; they must not hold land for the pecuniary benefit of the Corporation. The object, as he had stated before, was simply to assist the Municipal Corporation in carrying out more effectually the reclamation of bustees. This provision, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL hoped, would be doubly beneficial. In the first place it would assist the Commissioners in carrying out sanitary improvements; in the next place it would help proprietors of bustees, who might not have the means of carrying out improvements of large magnitude; they would receive fair and sufficient compensation for the land they possessed, but which they were not able to improve. He thought these sections, on the grounds he mentioned, were fair and equitable to all parties concerned, and most important from a sanitary point of view.

The next section to which he would refer was the section about drug shops. He believed there was no difference of opinion on the point that there ought to be some provision for the proper regulation of shops where medicinal drugs were exposed for sale. The Bill provided for the proper registration of drug shops, next for their proper supervision by the Health Officer of the Town, and thirdly for the employment of certificated compounders for the dispensing of medicines in those shops. It had been pointed out to him that as the section had been worded it would include Indian drugs which were used for the preparation of indigenous medicines, and if certificated compounders were insisted upon for the sale of such drugs, it would offer serious impediment to trade and to the indigenous system of medicine. In order to meet this objection, the Committee had inserted the words "drugs recognized in the British Pharmacopœia, not being also articles of ordinary domestic consumption." It, however, happened that Indian drugs had been included in the British Pharmacopœia which were not articles of domestic consumption; other drugs were also included which were used both for domestic consumption and medicinal purposes in this country. It would be very hard if, by any words in this section, the trade in Indian drugs should be fettered in any way. These drugs were very cheap, they were sold by small druggists, they were used by Indian Kobirajes and Hakeems, and most of them were comparatively innocuous, and if any obstacle were thrown in the way of the sale of such drugs, it would be a serious inconvenience to the public. BABOO KRISTODAS PAL would therefore take the opportunity, when the clauses of the Bill would come up for consideration, to ask the Council to consider whether some explanation should not be attached to the section which might exclude from its scope drugs which might be used for indigenous medicine.

He need not notice the other amendments made by the Select Committee, because they were more or less explained in the report; he would now present the report, leaving the detailed consideration of the clauses of the Bill for the next sitting of the Council.

APPOINTMENT OF A BURIAL BOARD FOR CALCUTTA AND ITS SUBURBS.

THE HON'BLE MR. MACKENZIE moved that the Bill to provide for the appointment of a Burial Board in Calcutta and its Suburbs be considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee. He had, with the permission of the President, last week, postponed this motion in order to give time for the receipt of further communications to the circular which had been issued. He had during that time received several further replies, and he was happy to say that two of the largest bodies interested—the Roman Catholic community and that of the Church of England—were entirely satisfied with the provisions of the Bill as they stood. Practically, he might say, that the Non-Conformists, as far as he had been able to discover, were also satisfied. One or two suggestions had been thrown out, but he did not consider it necessary to make any change in the substance of the Bill in consequence of those suggestions. As the Bill was worded, there was nothing in the section providing for the constitution of a Burial Board to compel the Lieutenant-Governor to appoint only laymen as additional members; it was quite open to His Honour to appoint either laymen or clergymen. That met one objection which had been taken by his correspondents. Another point was this. It was suggested that Non-Conformist bodies should be allowed to elect their own representatives. That, however, appeared hardly practicable, for the Government had no definite knowledge of the number of bodies who claimed to be represented; it would be difficult to lay down rules for the conduct of elections, and, on the whole, it would probably be found best that the power of appointment be left with the Lieutenant-Governor, who would consider the interests of the leading bodies and choose men who might be considered fairly representative. Another suggestion, which had been made, was that all the Government burial-grounds should be placed under the Board. The intention was that all such burial-grounds should be placed under the Board, but the Bill had been made discretionary, because new burial-grounds might be opened out which it might not always be convenient to place under the Board. Therefore, MR. MACKENZIE thought that on this point also there should be a discretion left to the Government. The only other suggestion which had been made was as to section 10. Several gentlemen had suggested that all private burial-grounds ought to be brought compulsorily under the jurisdiction of the Board. The Government had not heard how such a provision would be received by the proprietary and managing bodies concerned; and here also MR MACKENZIE thought it would be best that the Bill should be left open. On the whole, therefore, he did not see any reason to ask the Council to make any change; but in section 3, he would move to insert, after "Senior Chaplain of St Johns," the words "Church in Calcutta."

The motion was put and agreed to.

On the motion of the HON'BLE MR. MACKENZIE the Bill was then passed.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 2nd April.

FORMATION OF CLASSES FOR THE TRAINING OF COMPOUNDERS

GENERAL DEPARTMENT—EDUCATION.

Calcutta, the 30th March 1881.

RESOLUTION.

READ the following papers regarding a proposal to establish a class for the training of compounders in the medical schools of these provinces:—

Letter to the Surgeon-General, Bengal, No 499T, dated the 8th November 1880.
Letter from the Surgeon-General, Bengal, No. 42, dated the 5th January 1881.
Letter to the Director of Public Instruction, No. 45, dated the 18th January 1881.
Letter from the Director of Public Instruction, No. 1771, dated the 14th March 1881.

The rapidly increasing number of Government dispensaries and of private shops for the sale of medicines has brought prominently to notice the want of a system of training for the persons employed as compounders in these institutions. The only compounders' class in Bengal is to be found in the Mitford College at Dacca, and it is stated that but little benefit is derived from this, as the boys attached to it, as soon as they acquire the smallest smattering of knowledge, quit it for private employment.

It is clear that some security to the public against the results of ignorance and carelessness on the part of the dispensers of drugs and medicines is required. The Municipal law of Calcutta is now being amended so as to make the employment of certificated compounders compulsory in the druggists' shops of the town. A similar provision will probably find a place in the Bengal Municipal Act when that also comes under revision. It is incumbent upon Government therefore to provide the means of instruction and training for persons intending to practice as compounders. For this reason, and with this view, the Director of Public Instruction was requested to frame a scheme for the establishment of compounders' classes in connection with the medical schools at Sealdah, Dacca, Patna, and Cuttack.

In consultation with the Surgeon-General, the Lieutenant-Governor is now pleased to direct that compounders' classes be opened at these institutions on the following plan :—

(1.) Candidates for admission to the classes should be from 17 to 20 years of age.

(2.) They should be able to read and write Bengali well, and should know arithmetic up to the Rule-of-three. Their knowledge of English should suffice to enable them to read prescriptions and printed labels and to write labels for medicines dispensed. The Middle English and the Middle or Lower Vernacular Scholarship certificates should be accepted as qualifying candidates for admission; while the elementary knowledge of English required should be tested by the Superintendent of the School. Candidates having no departmental certificates should be specially certified by the Inspector of Schools. In case of applications being received in excess of the number of vacancies, the preference should be given to candidates holding departmental certificates.

(3.) The course of instruction should consist of practice in the compounding-room for one year. Candidates should be allowed, if they desire it, to attend the regular lectures in Materia Medica and Pharmacy, though the Lieutenant-Governor has some doubt as to how far such attendance will be really profitable. It would no doubt be useful if some simple instruction could be given to the compounders' class in Materia Medica and the properties of drugs, and Sir Ashley Eden would be glad to see some arrangements made, if practicable, for this purpose.

(4.) On the completion of the course, an examination should be held in the reading and writing of prescriptions, and in the compounding and dispensing of medicines; and a certificate signed by the Superintendent of the School should be given to those who pass. This certificate will be recognised as sufficient for the purposes of the Municipal Act. Those who fail may, on the special recommendation of their teachers in each case, be sent back for another three or six months' instruction in the subjects of failure, and be subjected at the end of that period to further examination.

(5.) The size of the class should be determined in each case by the Superintendent of the School according to his estimate of the probable number of pupils that can be efficiently taught.

(6.) At the Sealdah School the fee payable by each pupil attending the compounders' class will be Rs. 10. Of this sum, the Head Compounder will, in the case of each successful candidate for a certificate, receive Rs. 4. At Patna and Dacca fees will be levied at the rate of Rs. 5 a head from each pupil, of which the Head Compounder will get Rs. 2 for each successful candidate. As the demand for compounders is said to be limited at Cuttack, the Lieutenant-Governor does not see any necessity for creating a supply artificially by the payment of a stipend; but in the event of any candidates presenting themselves, they should be admitted to the class on depositing Rs. 4 as caution-money. All fees should be paid in advance.

(7. The fees thus levied will provide remuneration for the Head Compounders at each school for the extra duties now imposed on them, and will also cover the cost of drugs used in teaching, and the expenses of the examination. In the case of the Sealdah School, the Lieutenant-Governor sanctions the employment, in addition to the present staff, of an assistant compounder on Rs. 16 per mensem.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

A. MACKENZIE,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT OF THE BOARD OF REVENUE ON THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE OPIUM DEPARTMENT FOR THE YEAR 1879-80.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT—MISCELLANEOUS REVENUE.

Calcutta, the 4th April 1881.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

A letter No. 182B, dated the 8th March 1881, from the Officiating Secretary to the Board of Revenue, submitting the reports of the Opium Agents of Behar and Benares for the year 1879-80.

The Lieutenant-Governor regrets again to be obliged to notice the delay which has occurred in the submission of this report by the Board of Revenue. Both the reports from the agencies are dated the 30th November, but were not forwarded to Government for more than three months after that date. Only once in the last few years have the reports reached the Bengal Secretariat within three months of their despatch from Ghazipore and Patna. The Lieutenant-Governor trusts that the Board will endeavour in future to avoid this delay, which cannot really be necessary for the satisfactory preparation of the Board's covering letter.

2. The following statement shows the cultivation and produce in each agency for the last two years:—

Season.	Land sown for cultivation.	Net cultivation.	Produce at 70° consistence.
Behar.	Beeghas	Beeghas.	Mds.	s.	c.
1878-79	500,371	415,289	41,268	1	4½
1879-80	473,550	461,086	53,593	23	1
Increase ...	.....	45,797	12,325	21	12½
Decrease ...	26,821	.....	.....
Benares.
1878-79	416,015	395,820	56,636	35	8½
1879-80	451,641	438,531	45,476	37	0½
Increase ...	35,626	42,711	.....
Decrease ...	.....	.....	11,160	38	8

It appears that, while there was a decrease of 26,821 beeghas in the area sown for cultivation in the Behar Agency, the actual cultivation was more than in 1878-79 (when there occurred an extensive failure of crop) by 45,797 beeghas, and the net produce, at a consistence of 70°, was greater by over 12,325 maunds than in 1878-79. The additional area thus put under crop lay chiefly in unirrigated tracts, the total unirrigated area cultivated being 123,104 beeghas against 81,911 in 1878-79. In the Benares Agency a decrease of 11,160 maunds is apparent in the net produce, notwithstanding the fact that there were 35,626 beeghas more brought under cultivation, and that the area of net cultivation was greater by 42,711 beeghas in the year under review than in the previous year.

3. The decrease in the area sown in Behar is said to have been due in some parts to sickness among the cultivators and murrain among the cattle, and in some to the fact that extensions have been already pushed too far; but generally speaking the Agent attributes the falling off to the disheartening effect of two bad seasons, the reduction in the price of the crude drug from Rs. 5 to Rs. 4-8 per seer, and the increasing remunerativeness of other crops. Special attention is drawn to the formidable rivalry of sugarcane in the region south of the Ganges, consequent on the adoption by both European and native manufacturers of a system of advances enabling the smaller cultivators to grow this remunerative crop, which, owing to its occupying the land for the whole year, was formerly only taken up by the more substantial ryots. The Government of India has already, on the Lieutenant-Governor's suggestion, raised the price of crude opium to the old figure, but the Agent doubts whether this will suffice to secure extensions to really profitable lands or even bring about the recovery of such lands where already lost. The Board consider that improvements calculated to increase the popularity of the cultivation might be made in the present system of advances and adjustment of accounts, and the Lieutenant-Governor will be glad to see attention given to this matter. He is not, however, prepared to accept the view now again put forward by the Board that Government should, in order to secure such popularity, refrain as a matter of course from recovering its advances whenever the season turns out to be unfavourable. The assumption made in the report that advances on account of sugar cultivation, indigo cultivation, and the like, are not recovered from the cultivators when the crop fails rests on no basis of fact. Remissions are no doubt made by private capitalists who grant advances, when it appears good policy to do so, and Government is always ready to treat liberally those who take State advances when a real necessity for concession exists, but nothing could be more demoralizing to the ryots than to encourage the idea that they may take advances freely in the certainty that if they fail to work them off they will be as a matter of course remitted. The results of the Government orders for recovery of those balances of 1877-78, which the Board would have indiscriminatingly remitted, prove that no injury is done by judicious firmness in dealing with this question. All needful remissions have been sanctioned, while the interests of Government have not been sacrificed.

4. In the Benares Agency every endeavour was made under the orders of the Government of India to extend the cultivation, and a net increase of nearly 60,931 beeghas was obtained over the settlements of the previous year. Unfortunately, a severe epidemic of fever broke out, many of the cultivators who had taken advances died, and many more were disabled from cultivating the amount of land for which they had taken settlement. The result was that the net area cultivated fell short of that settled by 22,867 beeghas. There is, however, no reason to anticipate any disinclination to cultivate the poppy in these provinces. The crop continues to be popular, and further extensions are, under the orders of the Government of India, going on in the current year.

5. One of the main differences between the cultivation in Behar and Benares is the large proportion of unirrigated land in the former agency. In the year under review there were in Behar 1,23,104 beeghas unirrigated, while in Benares only 10,091 beeghas came under that category. There are large tracts north of the Ganges in Behar where well-irrigation would, owing to the large amount of alkali in the soil and in the sub-soil water, only serve to destroy the crop. But it seems probable that more might be done in the way of well-making in tracts where this peculiarity of soil is less marked, and the Lieutenant-Governor has noted with satisfaction the results of Mr. Tytler's efforts to encourage the making of permanent wells in the Aliganj sub-district. Mr. Tytler deserves great credit for the interest which he has shown in well-irrigation. The Agent should, as he proposes, impress upon district officers and others the importance of this matter and sanction advances freely where required. During the year only Rs. 11,294 were given in advances for wells in Behar. In Benares Rs. 9,894 were advanced, most of the area cultivated being irrigated already.

6. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe the promptitude with which all officers of the Behar Agency carried out the orders of Government for the introduction of maps and registers after the pattern of those which had been previously in use at Benares.

7. The experiment of issuing minature licenses to each cultivator having proved successful in the Ghazipore and Faizabad sub-agencies, the Board have ordered its extension to the whole of the Benares Agency and to the Gya and Aliganj sub-agencies of the Behar Agency. The object of the system, as given in paragraph 36 of the Board's report, is as follows:—"To supply each cultivator with an extract from the combined license issued to the lumberdar. Each cultivator is thus provided with a separate record of his own transactions with the agency, and this is equally convenient to the officers of the department when testing measurements, or on any other occasion when enquiries may be necessary, which otherwise can be avoided by the excuse that the lumberdar, license and all, is absent from the village. A further merit which is claimed for this system is that it is a safe check on illicit cultivation under cover of a joint license which cannot always readily be checked with the area of the different plots under crop." The Lieutenant-Governor desires that it may be noticed in next year's report, how far the system has proved successful in the districts to which it has now been extended.

8. As regards the weather in the Behar Agency, especially in the districts on the north of the Ganges, the year was very favourable. Anticipations which were at one time entertained of a blight were not realized, and the moderate rain which fell in February, though injurious to the manufacture of leaves, and causing some reduction in the consistence of the drug, did more good than harm by bringing on the plants which, owing to the lateness of the rains in the previous year, were in a backward condition. In Benares, on the other hand, although the season commenced well, the rains in February were so heavy as to injure the strength and productiveness of the plants, and were followed by unusually early hot winds that scorched up the crops of the later sowings and reduced the outturn.

The following table shows the average outturn per beegha in both agencies for the last five years :—

	Behar.		Benares.
	Seers.	Chittacks.	Seers.	Chittacks.
1875-76	5	13¼	6	4
1876-77	4	14¾	6	9
1877-78	3	5¼	5	1¾
1878-79	3	15½	5	7¼
1879-80	4	10¼	4	0½

The year under review is the first in this period in which the average outturn from Behar has surpassed that of Benares. The decline in the Benares average since 1875-76 seems to justify the inference that in the desire to extend cultivation inferior land has been taken up.

9. The total deliveries of opium at the Patna Factory, taken at 70° consistence, amounted to maunds 53,593-23-1¼, or maunds 12,325-21-13 over last year. From Benares, Patna received maunds 8,073-14-9½ for excise opium and lewah. The factory made 31,118 chests of provision opium at 74° and 75°, against 29,786 in 1878-79, and 3,318½ chests of excise opium against 3,297½. The deliveries of free pussewah rose from maunds 46-7-2½ in 1878-79 to maunds 942-23-6½ equivalent to damdatta (70°) maunds 323-27-9½. The quality of the opium was generally good. Maunds 6-4-1½ were confiscated as adulterated after being passed by Sub-Deputy Opium Agents as good, against maunds 4-34-9½ last year. There was a large increase in the number of deliveries of opium marked as 'suspected' by the district officers, indicating greater strictness in examination, and the quantity on which fines were imposed rose from maunds 86-37-15 to maunds 435-29-8. The total quantity confiscated was maunds 21-11-3 against maunds 16-4-5 in 1878-79. The Board, in paragraph 13 of their covering letter, refer to the successful results of the recently sanctioned payment of commission to the headmen and ryots of Nepalese villages to induce them to bring in their opium for sale. This is a matter that does not, however, properly belong to the year now under review.

10. In the Benares Agency the net outturn at 70° consistence was maunds 45,475-37-0¼, or less by maunds 11,160-38-8 than in 1878-79, showing a decrease in outturn of 24·54 per cent., although the area under crop was 8·56 per cent. greater. These results are attributed entirely to the unfavorable weather. The quantity of opium sent in as suspected was maunds 116-25-9 against maunds 122-5-6 last year. The amount actually confiscated out of this was maunds 35-20-3 against maunds 21-32-13. Fines were imposed on maunds 655-28-5 against maunds 709-13-8. There was an increase (from maunds 4-28-5½ to maunds 5-3-2) in the amount of opium passed as good by the out-stations and found at the factory to be adulterated. The Agent, however, believes that in the most serious case the jars had been tampered with in transit. The deliveries of pure pussewah were maunds 172-18-4 against maunds 8-21-7 last year. The Agent here believes that the orders sanctioning a commission of one rupee per maund for free pussewah brought in had a good effect in encouraging its separation. The Behar authorities, on the other hand, attribute the larger quantity delivered in this year to the fact that the season was favorable to the production of pussewah. It is too soon yet to decide whether the grant of commission has really done good, and it should be continued during the current year. The Ghazipore Factory made 21,851 chests of provision opium against 20,175 in 1878-79, and 177 chests of excise opium against 2,308. The bulk of the cakes ranged between 69·50° and 70° consistence, none being lower than 69·50°.

11. The total expenditure of the year was Rs. 1,06,35,352 in Behar against Rs. 83,42,062 in 1878-79; and in Benares Rs 92,73,815 against Rs. 1,12,52,285.

12. The progress made in the collection of the outstanding balances in Behar is extremely satisfactory. The balances of 1877-78 originally amounted to Rs. 6,49,052. These were reduced by the end of 1878-79 to Rs. 2,13,166. Of this sum, Rs. 16,403 have been remitted under the orders of Government; the remainder, with the exception of Rs. 3,383, which it is expected will shortly be realized, has been recovered. Rs. 9,537, outstanding from 1878-79 are in process of realization, and the balance of the year under review amounts to Rs. 10,914 only. Of this sum Rs. 10,550 are due from the Monghyr Agency, where the crop suffered much from hail-storms In Benares the Agent anticipates that about half the outstanding balances, amounting to some Rs. 30,000, will be realized. The Lieutenant-Governor approves of the instructions given by the Board to the Agent with regard to the recovery of these balances.

13. The tables given do not show the total number of cases of smuggling detected during the year. The number of prosecutions instituted in the Benares Agency is given as 855, in 766 of which convictions were obtained. The amount realized as fines was Rs. 13,198-3-6, and that given in rewards Rs. 15,950-12-9. These numbers are throughout below those of the previous year. In Behar it is stated that 45 cases of opium-smuggling were successfully prosecuted, in which the offenders belonged to the Patna Division. Of the 59 persons concerned in these cases, 41 were imprisoned, and were under the standing orders of Government brought to Bankipore Jail, in order that they might be identified. The Agent, however, reports that in the majority of cases the prisoners evaded recognition by giving false names and addresses. The Board are of opinion that there must have been some want of zeal or intelligence in working out the plan of identification. The subject is one of some importance, and the Lieutenant-Governor would wish to have a special report as to the system now pursued, with such suggestions for its improvement as may occur to the Board and the Agent. Some explanation of the extraordinary difference in the number of cases reported in the two agencies is also called for. It appears doubtful whether the figures for Behar are complete. No tabular statement of opium cases is given as in the Benares report.

14. The report by the Principal Assistant of the Behar Agency, on the work of the Patna Factory and the improvements effected there in the course of the year, has been read with great interest. Dr. Shepherd deserves the cordial thanks of Government for the numerous and important improvements effected in the factory arrangements. It is hoped that the measures adopted by him for the careful supervision of cake-making and packing will do something towards removing the cause of the complaints now made in China of the defective condition of the Behar opium on arrival there. The whole question of packing and storing provision opium has, however, recently been exhaustively dealt with by Government on the report of the Special Committee appointed to consider the matter, and the orders of the Government of India on the subject are now under issue.

15. No new chests have been turned out by the Patna saw-mill during the year under review. This is ascribed to the large amount of alterations and repairs necessary to bring the old chests into conformity with the prescribed specification, and to the non-receipt of dovetailing machinery from England. Mr. Girling, the Superintendent of the Saw-mill, has again rendered good service in improving the machinery for preparing and fitting the chests and in conducting the operations of his department.

16. From the statement (F) in the appendix, it appears that 28,200 chests of Patna-made opium were sold during the year at an average per chest of Rs. 1,361-0-7 against Rs. 1,188-11-7 in the previous year, the average cost per chest being Rs. 308-11-1 against Rs. 251-15-5. Of Benares opium 24,851 chests were sent to the Presidency, but the results of sales are not given. The average cost of each chest was Rs 350-5-10 against Rs. 356-3-6. The attention of the Board is invited to the remarks on the incompleteness of the annual statements embodied in the Resolution on the Report for 1876-77, and to the instructions contained in Government order No. 665T, dated the 26th June 1878, as to the mode of exhibiting the results of sales, and giving uniform statistics for the two agencies. The reports still leave something to be desired in this respect.

17. The thanks of Government are due to both the Agents for the intelligent supervision exercised over their respective charges. Mr. Carnac has been particularly zealous in giving effect to the orders of the Government of India regarding the extension of cultivation in his Agency The Lieutenant-Governor also notices with satisfaction the commendation bestowed by the Board and by the Agents on the work done by Drs. Shepherd and Durant. The last paragraph of the Board's letter will be forwarded to the Appointment Department of this office for information.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the barograph and thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

o overcast, g gloomy, d drizzling rain, t thunder, p passing temporary showers, Δ dew.

N.B.—In the Weekly Report from 20th to 26th March 1881, read 3·5lbs. instead of 35lbs. as the highest pressure of the wind on one square foot during the seven days.

NOTE.

Barometric Pressure.—The pressures in column 2 of the above table for all stations below 500 feet are reduced from those given in column 3 of the table on the previous page, by adding the weight of a column of air of the temperatures given in column 18. For stations above 500 feet elevation the reduction is made by Captain Allan Cunningham's table, "Prof., Papers on Indian Engineering, No. CXIII." The temperatures at the sea-level are taken from column 3 of the above table.

Temperature.—The temperatures in column 3 are reduced from those in column 18 on the preceding page, by adding 1° Fahrenheit for every 450 feet.

Wind Resultant.—The resultant wind direction and its comparative predominance are calculated from the whole number of wind observations recorded during the month. The relative predominance in the direction of the resultant is given as a percentage of the whole number of observations. The direction is computed in the usual way by Lambert's formula.

Cloud.—This column gives the average proportion of clouded sky, a cloudless sky being indicated by 0, and one completely overcast by 1 0.

The above, being all comparable, afford the data for constructing a meteorological chart for the month, which will show the isobaric and isothermal lines and the resultant wind directions, which last may be represented by arrows of varying length, proportioned to the prevalence of the wind. To these may be added the rainfall from the previous tables.

PRESENT:

HIS HONOUR THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR OF BENGAL, Presiding,
The HON'BLE G. C. PAUL, C.I.E., Advocate-General,
The HON'BLE H. L. DAMPIER,
The HON'BLE H. J. REYNOLDS,
The HON'BLE H. A. COCKERELL,
The HON'BLE A. MACKENZIE,
The HON'BLE T. T. ALLEN,
The HON'BLE PEARY MOHUN MOOKERJEE,
The HON'BLE KRISTODAS PAL, RAI BAHADOOR, C.I.E., and
The HON'BLE AMEER ALI.

AMENDMENT OF THE COURT OF WARDS ACT.

ON the motion of the HON'BLE MR. DAMPIER, the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend "The Court of Wards Act, 1879," was taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill, and the clauses of the Bill were considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee. He said that since the last meeting of the Council he had sent copies of the Bill as it stood to a few Commissioners and Collectors with a view to its being carefully considered before it was finally passed. The result showed that there was nothing of any importance required, but suggestions had been received of a few verbal amendments which he would now proceed to move.

The first of these was in section 1. This being a short amending Act, no short title was required, and the words from "may be called" in line 1 down to the word "it" inclusive in line 4, were omitted.

In section 4 an amendment was made so as to provide for the insertion of the word "sale" before the word "proceeds" in the proviso to clause 1 of section 23 of the Wards Act, and in lines 7 and 8 of clause 2 of the same section, for the words "and all arrears of rent" the words "cesses and other demands and all arrears thereof" were substituted. As the Act stood, when the Collector attached an estate for the recovery of any sum due at the time of releasing the estate from the protection of the Court of Wards, he was empowered to recover only rent and arrears of rent; the amendment would empower him to recover all cesses and other demands recoverable as arrears of revenue.

Further amendments were made in the same section by the substitution in the proviso to clause 2, line 2 of the word "attached" for the word "farmed," and the omission of the words "of such farm" in line 3. The proviso as it stood laid down what was to be done with the proceeds of attached estates if let in farm, but there was no provision as to the mode of proceeding if the estate was managed by the Collector direct; this amendment was to correct that defect.

Verbal amendments were made in sections 5 and 6 of the Bill.

Section 9 was a new section giving power to the Collector to call for accounts and papers from a farmer within six months after the expiry of the lease; but it had been brought to notice that very often it was made a condition that the farmer should file a jummabundi every year, and it was represented that it would be very inconvenient if, under the law, the farmer could only be called upon to file accounts and papers after the expiry of his lease. It was therefore proposed to confer the power of calling for accounts and papers "at any time during the currency of the lease or" within six months, &c., and the opportunity was taken to make amendment further down the section by repeating the words "accounts, documents, or papers" in lieu of the word "information" which had crept in by a clerical error.

The Hon'ble Mr. Dampier then moved that the Bill as amended be passed.

The Hon'ble Mr. Allen said that before the Bill left the Council, he wished to add a few words on the subject of the discussion which took place at the last meeting of the Council. The fact of his hon'ble friend the mover having disclaimed any opinion of his own on the subject appeared to impose an additional obligation on Mr. Allen to justify the opinion which he then gave. He must admit that at that time the force of his hon'ble friend's words did not strike him. It was only on seeing the Gazette, and finding Mr. Dampier's official faith pinned to him, that he felt the responsibility which the hon'ble member had cast on him. Further, the misapprehension which had been given expression to by the hon'ble gentlemen opposite appeared to be very widespread and not confined merely to those in Calcutta—persons who had been whetting their ingenuity over the circumstances of a particular case. He had lately had a visit from a mofussil pleader, and evidently the opinion considered to be undoubted was that which the member opposite gave expression to; and furthermore, it was not a matter of pure theory, but one of very important practical effect. This pleader mentioned a case with the circumstances of which it was unnecessary to trouble the Council, but which had reference to the disposal of a very large property, and the advice which was then given was entirely based upon that view of the age of minority. Now, on the last occasion, Mr. Allen's remarks were very much in the nature of verbal criticism, and he travelled no further than the section itself. But these circumstances led him to look more deeply into the matter, and to go back to the history of majority legislation. The Majority Act of 1875 provided two distinct periods for two distinct classes of persons,—one at the age of 18 and the other of 21. Now, according to the opinion Mr. Allen was combatting, the distinguishing and determining circumstance which was to decide the class of these two to which any particular person belonged, lay in the fact whether, at the time of attaining the age of 18, the minor was already under the protection of the Court of Wards or not. If he were already under the protection of the Court of Wards, it was admitted that the minority continued till the age of 21, but if the minor had not been taken under such protection, he became, it was said, a major immediately; he was entitled to defy the Court of Wards to spend his money in any way he pleased, and to ruin himself as fast as he liked. Thus, if at the time of his father's death, a minor was of the age of 17 years and 11 months, if the Collector of the district was vigilant and seized the estate immediately, the minor became incapacited for three years. If, on the other hand, the minor managed to conceal his father's death, or the father died a month later, that minor became sui juris. Thus the three years' civil incapacity was made to turn upon the merest accident which had no reference to the mental or moral maturity of the subject, or the responsibilities or dangers he was exposed to. The mere fact of having been a single week under the protection of the Court was, as it were, to carry with it by law the taint of three years' incapacity. This was simply to treat the Court of Wards as if it were a plague-stricken port, the entering of which for the most temporary shelter involved civil quarantine for three years. Now, could it be supposed that any Legislature would attach such consequences to coming under its own Court's protection? It might be true that the Court of Wards had enemies who made light of the training and education which it afforded, but a provision of this nature, however effective as a piece of cruel irony, would be altogether out of place in an Act of the Legislature; and any interpretation which involved such a conclusion carried its own condemnation with it. But the past history of the legislation on majority led to the same opinion. In 1793, when the Court of Wards was established, 15 years was taken as the period at which a minor became competent to manage his own property. This was simply accepting what was supposed to be the Hindu and Muhammadan law on the subject; but inconvenience was very soon experienced in making that the age of majority, and by Regulation XXVI of 1793 the Legislature postponed the period of majority for three years. In the preamble to that Regulation, the reasons which induced the Legislature to do so were sufficiently set out in language of the most sober and weighty kind. For proprietors of entire estates paying revenue direct to Government, the age of majority was fixed at 18 years, but for others no specific period was appointed, and they remained, under the general Hindu and Muhammadan law, minors till the age of 15. Act XL of 1858 took their case into consideration, and enacted that all such as were not already protected by the Court of Wards were to attain their majority at the age of 18. MR. ALLEN was aware that there had been in early years diversity of decisions as to the effect of this Act, and that the view taken in the Bombay Presidency appeared to be different from the view taken here, but the question was finally settled by a Full Bench decision of the High Court of Calcutta in 1871, 1 B. L. R., 49. The argument then put before the High Court was very much the same as that which had been put forward in this Council with reference to the Court of Wards' jurisdiction. The dispute then was as to the effect of Act XL of 1858, and it was contended that that Act only provided for those who had already come under the control of the civil court, and that if they had not been brought under the control of the civil court, they attained their majority at the age of 15. The argument which the hon'ble member opposite maintained on the present occasion with respect to the Court of Wards' jurisdiction was stated by the then Chief Justice Sir Barnes Peacock in the form of a question, thus: "Then can it be said that being a minor, subject to the jurisdiction of the civil court, he is not a minor unless proceedings are taken in the civil court for the protection of his property or for the appointment of a guardian?" The Full Bench decision is the answer to that question. MR. ALLEN would not pretend to give in his own words the effect of that decision, but the question was afterwards raised again in the High Court, when Mr. Justice Phear said: "By that Full Bench decision I understand it to be now settled that in the mofussil at any rate all persons (with certain exceptions) who have not attained the age of 18 years are under the disability of minority." Such was the state of the law when the Majority Act of 1875 was introduced, and it would be seen, on referring to the proceedings in the Governor-General's Council in reference to the passing of that Act, that at the time no intention to change the principle of the law was manifested by any person. A very strong opinion was expressed that for all minors of all classes the period of majority should be 21, but for various reasons the Select Committee determined not to adopt this age. They expressly put it that their reason for doing so was that they apprehended there were two classes of minors, one whose majority was attained at the age of 15 and the other at the age of 18, and they feared that a change from 15 to 21 was too great a leap to be taken at once. Therefore they confined themselves to deferring the period of majority in each case by three years. He quoted from Mr. Hobhouse's speech in presenting the report of the Select Committee. Having discussed the proposals made, Mr. Hobhouse summed up in this way: "It was found that after the introduction of the Bill there was only one serious subject of controversy, and that was whether the age of majority should be fixed at 18 or at some later age. We were recommended in a great number of influential quarters to postpone the age to 21, and were referred to many cases in which injury had occurred to young men by reason of their becoming masters of their property at too early an age. So it happened that when we came to discuss these papers, the object of uniformity seemed to be less important than the object of framing a law suitable for the needs of Indian Society, and we found that if we prolonged the non-age of those who were wards of Court, though we should not altogether follow the recommendations of those who advocated the age of 21, yet we should substantially satisfy their reasons and meet the cases of mischief which they adduced, while at the same time we should avoid so large a change as would be caused by altering the age from that of 15 years or less to that of 21. The broad result is that, setting apart the cases of successions and of European British subjects, we have provided that those who are now minors up to 18 shall remain so up to 21, and that others shall attain their majority at 18." The effect was simply to defer by three years the age of majority in each case.

When we came to examine what were the distinguishing circumstances which marked the particular law under which any particular person was to fall, it would be found that it was made in every instance to turn upon the question of the possession of property. The preamble to Regulation XXVI of 1793 distinctly put it upon the responsibility and dangers to which minor zemindars were exposed at the early age of 15 years. That principle was also accepted by the Legislature in 1875, and in continuation of his speech Mr. Hobhouse observed that, as a fact, no direct inconvenience would follow their refusal to make 21 the age of majority for all, because the richer classes were the only ones who would ever have occasion to appeal to the Majority Act practically, and that in providing the age of 21 years in their case the Council were meeting the whole difficulties which were likely to arise. Mr. Hobhouse said—

"But here it seems to me that we walk on thoroughly safe ground. We are dealing with a class whose non-age, if their fathers are not living, is already prolonged beyond that of their neighbours, or liable to be so prolonged by a simple application to a court of law."

Mr. Hobhouse, at all events, supposed that they were covering not merely those who were already under guardianship, but those who might be brought under guardianship by a simple application to a court of law. From first to last the Legislature had, in determining the period, considered first, the probable capacity of the minor, and, secondly, the responsibility which he was likely to have to undertake, and according to those principles, and not any mere accident as to whether he was already under the protection of the Court or not, the point was determined.

Such being the state of things as provided for by the Majority Act, Mr. Allen now came to the present Court of Wards Act. It provided that for the purposes of the Act, every person under the age of 21 years was a minor. He thought it was not open to the Council to modify that section in any way. The Majority Act provided specially for those under the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards, and this Council could not do otherwise than make 21 years the age of majority for the purposes of the Court of Wards Act. On the last occasion he suggested that the only way to escape the supposed difficulty, if there was a difficulty, would be to reduce the age of majority to 18 years in the Wards Act, but he now retracted that remark, for, by doing so, this Council would then indeed be going against the Majority Act. If the Wards Act declared "minor" to mean every one under 18 years, it would thus declare a ward reached majority at 18 years; while the Majority Act itself distinctly provided that (even according to the view of his opponents a ward should reach majority at 21 years, and not before. To make such a provision would be indeed ultra vires of this Council. But the practical question involved in and underlying all this was whether one whom the Wards Act declared a minor, he being under the age of 21 years, might dispute the control of the Court of Wards if he had attained the age of 18 before the Court had assumed the right of guardianship over him. The Wards Act legally bound every person in Bengal, and if any person was so ill-advised as to attempt to go into the civil court to shake off that control, his only possible chance of success would be by inducing the Court to declare that this Council had no power to fix 21 as the age of majority for minors subject to the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards. It was true that the courts in this country had from the commencement lent too ready an ear to the argument of ultra vires, and had been so indiscreet as not to confine the acceptance of the argument to cases in which orders of the executive Government were impugned, but had also applied that principle to render void Acts of the Legislature; but in every case in which an Act of the Legislature had been declared to be ultra vires, he believed it would be found the Superior Court had set things right. In no one case had this argument, at least as regards legislative Acts, been upheld, and if any ward or any minor should go into Court to press this argument, it would not be the Court's duty to be astute to discover that there was conflict between the two Legislatures, and further, any Court would doubtless give full effect to the consideration that the minority had been extended to 21, not for the destruction, but for the protection of the ward. The only result which MR. ALLEN could anticipate from a ward coming into court for any such purpose would be that by so doing he would furnish an additional illustration of his incapacity and undue readiness to be led away by evil advisers, and thus justify the Act of the Legislature which had deferred his majority to the age of 21 years; but as to the result of any such application MR. ALLEN did not suppose there could be the smallest doubt. The Supreme Government had already considered the Court of Wards' Act of this Council, it had accorded its sanction to it, and it would not have done this if it was in reality in opposition to an Act of its own Council. But so far from the Wards Act being in opposition to the Indian Majority Act, it was only in the Court of Wards' Act that the intention of the Supreme Legislature had received its complete accomplishment. These remarks, in an insufficient and feeble manner he admitted, covered arguments which yet he believed could never be controverted.

The HON'BLE THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL said that on the last occasion on which this question was considered he was absent from the Council, but the hon'ble mover of the Bill correctly represented the Advocate-General's opinion which was entirely in consonance with that which had been expressed by Mr. Allen. The ADVOCATE-GENERAL was glad to observe that Mr. Allen had further confirmed that opinion by a considerable amount of research in tracing the history of the Act itself. The opinion which the ADVOCATE-GENERAL had formed at one of the consultations of the Select Committee, was one as to which he was perfectly clear, and he did not think any reasonable doubt existed as to the meaning of section 3 of Act IX of 1875. The words "under the jurisdiction of any Court of Wards" made it perfectly clear that it was entirely unnecessary, for the purposes of section 3, that the minor should be actually under the protection of the Court of Wards, or that his estates should be vested in the Court. An infant under the English law was always under the jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery, although his property had not been taken possession of by the Court nor a guardian appointed. It could not be disputed that he would continue under the Court of Chancery until he had attained the age of 21. The attempt at present made, if successful, would be a retrograde movement to the state of things which existed before Act IX of 1875 was passed. The ADVOCATE-GENERAL remembered very distinctly giving a great deal of time to the consideration of the matter in consultation with Mr. Clarke, the then Secretary in the Legislative Department, and it was because section 3 of the Indian Majority Act used the expression "under the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards," that it was determined to frame the section in the Wards Act as had been done, namely, that a minor, should for the purposes of the Act, be a person under the age of 21 years. The Wards Act was drawn so as to make the two Acts read together. He did not think that any reasonable doubt existed as to the construction of the Act, and even if it did, he did not think this Council could in any effective manner interfere with the provisions of section 3 of the Majority Act, and if his hon'ble friends thought that the word "jurisdiction" in that Act meant something different to the construction put by the Legal Remembrancer, they must go to a court of law for an authoritative interpretation of the meaning of the Act. There was a great case pending a short time back in regard to which, if the opinion entertained by the learned Legal Remembrancer and himself and the majority of the Committee was wrong or defective, proceedings would have been taken to set the matter right. He was not at liberty to mention the case further; but he knew that in that case sufficient and careful legal advice was taken on the subject. As far as he could see there did not appear to be the smallest doubt that the opinion which had been expressed by MR ALLEN was perfectly correct, and he thought this Council was greatly indebted to the hon'ble gentleman for the able manner in which he had this morning given expression to his views.

The HON'BLE AMEER ALI said that, as he had recorded a dissent to the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Court of Wards' Act, he felt bound to say a few words after the remarks which had fallen from the learned Legal Remembrancer and the Advocate-General. He was under the impression that this question had been dropped and would not be raised again. He had merely mentioned the difficulty because it had suggested itself to him and to other professional gentlemen. He wished to assure hon'ble members that nothing was further from his intention than to reduce the age of majority; on the contrary, he would make the age uniform with reference to all persons, and remove the difficulty in that way. Instead of allowing the age of majority to fluctuate from 18 to 21, depending upon the circumstance whether a person was possessed of estates paying revenue to Government or not, he would have a uniform rule substituted in respect of all persons. But the question which he had raised involved a practical difficulty which had its origin from a conflict of words in the two Acts. He did not wish to enter into a technical discussion on the subject, and he was obliged to his learned friend for going into the history of legislation as to the majority of minors. But the question remained, what meaning was to be attached to the words "jurisdiction of the Court of Wards." He was bound to attach the greatest weight to the opinion of the Government law officers, but he wished to suggest one difficulty which had occurred to him as to the meaning of the word "jurisdiction." The hon'ble gentlemen seemed to think that the meaning to be attached to the expression implied a prospective jurisdiction. He did not suppose they contended that the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards was a larger jurisdiction than the jurisdiction of the civil courts. He did not think it could be contended that under the Indian Majority Act, the civil court could appoint a guardian ad litem to a person who had attained the age of majority, but if his learned friend's opinion was correct, that the Court of Wards could take possession of the estate and appoint a guardian to a person who had not completed 21, but had attained the age of 18; it seemed to MR. AMEER ALI that if such a person could be reduced to the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards, then that Court had a larger jurisdiction than the civil court. That, he believed, would reduce the whole contention to an absurdity. Then there was another question. If it was contended that the civil court had the same jurisdiction as the Court of Wards, then it would follow that a person would be subject to two concurrent jurisdictions the whole time, and if he was subject to the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards until the age of 21, then the law of limitation as to persons who completed the age of 18 years would not apply. Taking a common-sense view of the words used by the Indian Legislature, it seemed to MR. AMEER ALI hardly possible to avoid landing oneself into an absurdity if a prospective meaning were attached to the words "jurisdiction of the Court of Wards." That was his reason for having raised this question. If the Council had not the power here to amend matters, a suggestion might be made to the Supreme Legislature for avoiding the difficulty, or some words might be added to section 27 of the Wards Act to effect the same object. It was not, however, for him to make any such suggestion.

BABOO PEARY MOHUN MOOKERJEE said that, although the discussion was at the present moment a sterile one, he wished to remark that the Court of Wards was an institution very different from the English Court of Chancery. Here the institution owed its origin to the solicitude of Government for securing its revenue, but in the case of young men who might possess hundreds of thousands if not millions of rupees in a bank, there was no institution which took care of such persons and prevented their squandering away their property, although it was a property which was much more easily dissipated than landed property. But in the case of minors who possessed property paying revenue to Government, the Court of Wards took care both of the person and the property of the minor. It was no doubt a benevolent institution, but still it was an institution which owed its origin to the desire of Government to see that the revenue due from the estates of minors was secured. He thought therefore that the policy of the law, as enunciated by the hon'ble and learned members opposite, did not hold good with reference to all minors in this country; the case of a minor, however rich he might be, who did not possess landed property, was quite different from that of minors who had such property, and therefore there was no force in the argument based on an analogy between the Court of Chancery in England and the Court of Wards here.

HIS HONOUR THE PRESIDENT said that, having regard to the difficulty which was alleged to exist as to the interpretation of the two Acts, he thought the Council was indebted to the hon'ble and learned member for having raised this question and having given an opportunity to the law officers of Government to show, as they had done to HIS HONOUR'S entire satisfaction, that no such difficulty really existed as that which had been suggested. The question seemed to be a very simple one. Part II of the Court of Wards Act described the constitution and the jurisdiction of the Court. With regard to its constitution, the Act said that the Board of Revenue was to be the Court of Wards, and its jurisdiction was declared to extend to the person and property of persons declared to be minors; and a minor was defined to be a person who had not completed the age of 21. The Court of Wards was declared, under section 6 of the Act, to have jurisdiction over all such persons. The meaning of the term "ward" was also to be gathered from the next section of the Act. That section provided that "whenever the sole proprietor of an estate, or all the joint proprietors of an estate, are disqualified as provided in the last preceding section, the Court shall have power to take charge of all the property of every such proprietor or joint proprietor within its jurisdiction."

If the word "jurisdiction" was to be interpreted, as the learned gentleman had contended, as applying only to persons whose estates had actually been brought under the charge of the Court, then the section would be absolutely meaningless. He thought the Acts were really quite clear, and that there was nothing which could not be reconciled between the Majority Act and the Wards Act.

The motion was then agreed to, and the Bill as amended was passed.

AMENDMENT OF THE BENGAL EXCISE ACT.

ON the motion of the HON'BLE MR. REYNOLDS, the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend "The Bengal Excise Act, 1878," was taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill, and the clauses of the Bill were considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee. The second section of the Bill, he said, repealed section 64 of Bengal Act VII of 1878, which had been rendered superfluous by section 9 of the Bill. Section 5 gave power either to prohibit absolutely the possession of certain foreign exciseable articles, or to limit such possession to certain specified quantities. The former alternative had been introduced at the request of the Chief Commissioner of Assam, who represented that he thought it of great importance that he should have the power of preventing the introduction of hill ganja into the province under his administration. By section 7, the words "for sale" were omitted from section 58 of the Act, and certain words were introduced at the end of the section to make it clear that the permission given by section 17 of the Act to possess certain quantities of different exciseable articles was not intended to authorize the introduction, into an excise circle, of spirituous liquors manufactured at another place, even though the quantity introduced might be within the limit allowed under section 17. The alteration in section 10 was of entirely a verbal nature. On going through the Act, it was observed that, as the first clause of section 75 was worded, it might be thought that "the seizure and confiscation" were to be made by the same officer, but no such effect was intended, because the Act distinctly declared that confiscation could only be made after adjudication by a Magistrate.

The Hon'ble Mr. Reynolds then moved the following amendment, namely, that section 4 be omitted from the Bill, and the following section be substituted in its place:—

"In the last clause of section 9, for the words, 'and permit the manufacture of such liquors in distilleries established under section 7,' the following shall be substituted:—.

"Nothing in this section, or in section 7, shall be held to debar the Collector, with the sanction of the Board, from granting a license for the manufacture of spirituous liquors after native processes in a distillery established under section 7."

It was represented by the Board of Revenue that though the wording of the last clause of section 9 of the Act of 1878 was not very happy, the clause had a meaning which was of such importance that they would prefer the provision remaining in the Act in some form. The Board had already in two instances authorized the manufacture of country spirits in distilleries established under section 7 for working after the European fashion, and though it might not be absolutely necessary that the law should specifically declare that the Board might grant licenses for such a purpose, the Board thought it desirable that the power should be vested in it by law. Mr. Reynolds therefore moved this amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

On the motion of the Hon'ble Mr. Reynolds, the Bill as amended was then passed.

AMENDMENT OF THE CALCUTTA MUNICIPAL CONSOLIDATION ACT.

On the motion of the Hon'ble Kristodas Pal, the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act, 1876, was taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill, and the clauses of the Bill were considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee.

On the motion of the Hon'ble Kristodas Pal, the following clause was added to section 13 of the Bill:—

"In the same section, after the word 'rates' the words 'and fees' shall be inserted."

The Hon'ble Kristodas Pal said that at the last meeting of the Council he had stated that it had been his misfortune to differ from his hon'ble colleagues in the Select Committee on the subject of the provision relating to the extension of the water-supply to the Suburbs. The section, as framed by the majority of the Committee, went, he thought, beyond the original scope of the Bill, for, when the Bill was introduced, it was not intended to extend the water-supply to other environs of the Town than the Suburbs. But as the section now stood, it gave power to the local Government to extend the water-supply to the environs of the Town without limiting the same to the Suburbs, and the proviso declared:

"Provided that the Commissioners may, with the sanction of the local Government, assess a separate and distinct water-rate upon any portion of the environs, not being more than the maximum rate leviable under the Act. The Commissioners may require the Commissioners of any Suburban Municipality to arrange for the assessment and collection of the water-rate within any tract belonging to such Municipality."

Read this proviso in the light of the remarks made by the majority of the Select Committee. They said:

"If the local Government is empowered to declare any portion of the environs to be part of the Town for the purposes of the water-supply, all the legislative sanction necessary will be given. The Government will then be in a position to act as supreme arbitrator between the Calcutta Corporation and the Suburban Municipalities."

Now, reading the two together, one could not resist the conviction that the amended section covered a much wider area than what it was the original intention to embrace. He for one did not believe that the Government did intend to assume such large powers; his impression was that the object of the Government was to limit the operation of the proposed law to the Suburbs only, by giving the inhabitants thereof the benefit of the Calcutta water-supply. If he was correct in this interpretation of the intention of Government, he hoped necessary alterations would be made in the Bill to limit the extension of the supply to the Suburbs only. If the environs of the Town were included, an indefinite and enormous burden would be imposed upon the Town.

With regard to the general question of the extension of the water-supply to the Suburbs, he wished to declare at the outset that he was not in the least opposed to that measure. All that he wanted was that it should be extended upon fair and equitable principles; that the Calcutta Corporation should not be made to suffer any loss for the sake of the advantage which might be conferred on the sister Municipality; that it should be a matter of fair exchange. But if the Council would carefully compare the section as it stood in the amended Bill with the section as it stood in the original Bill, they would find considerable difference between the two. In the amended Bill power was given to the local Government to determine to what portion of the environs of the Town the extension of the water-supply was to be sanctioned. In the original Bill the initiative was left to the Calcutta Corporation. When this amendment was introduced, he was told that this enabling provision had been drawn on the lines of the present Municipal Act, which empowered the Lieutenant-Governor to extend the drainage sections to the Suburbs. He wished it to be understood that there was a material difference between the enabling power given to the local Government under the drainage section, and that given under this section. It was never intended, when the drainage section was inserted in the Calcutta Municipal Act, that the drainage system should be extended to the Suburbs to any large extent. The object was simply to enable the Commissioners to extend the benefits of the Calcutta drainage to persons dwelling on the other side of the Circular Road. That section had been on the Statute Book for nearly eighteen years, and the Government had never thought it necessary to extend it to the Suburbs. But on the other hand, the Calcutta Commissioners had of their own accord allowed persons, living on the other side of the Circular Road, to connect their houses with the Circular Road sewer. Thus the operation of the drainage section had been very limited, but it was well understood that, under the section proposed in this Bill, a considerable portion of the Suburbs would be brought within the scheme of the Calcutta water-supply; in fact, the avowed object was to take active measures for the extension of the Calcutta water-supply to the Suburbs. It could not therefore be contended for a moment that the power given under this section would not be largely exercised for years to come. Such being the case, when they saw that the circumstances connected with the two matters under notice were so distinct and different, they ought to consider whether the Calcutta Corporation should not have the initiative, as it would have to bear the money responsibility. It should be borne in mind that this was not simply a question of law, but that it was a question of money. It was not simply a question whether the Government should have the power or not, but it was a question whether the Government should exercise the power if the Suburban Municipality was not in a position to make a fair and full contribution for the benefit they wished to enjoy. Baboo Kristodas Pal contended that before the obligation for the extension of the supply was made imperative upon the Calcutta Corporation, that body was entitled to enquire and satisfy itself as to whether there would be a sufficient surplus of water after meeting the wants of the Town for sale to outsiders, and whether the price which the Suburbs might be prepared to pay would cover all costs. Hence, it was necessary that the initiative should be left to the Corporation, who, when necessary, should move the local Government to bring the provision of the law into operation.

Then, the majority of the Committee admitted that the Suburban Municipality could not afford to pay more than 6 per cent. They said: "But we restrict this to the maximum already allowed by the Act, as that appears to us, on the figures available to us, not only as much as the Suburbs ought to bear, but as much as they can possibly afford to pay." So that the Committee had not considered whether the Suburban Municipality ought to pay more or not, but they thought that they could not afford to pay more than 6 per cent. It was not quite correct to say that there were no figures before them to show whether a 6 per cent. rate would be sufficient or not. The dissent which he thought proper to record gave the figures. But apart from the question whether the Suburbs should pay a higher rate or not, the Select Committee thought that they could not pay more. If that was the conclusion at which the Select Committee had arrived, he did not see with what consistency they recommended that the Calcutta Municipality should be compelled to extend the supply of Calcutta water to the Suburbs. For when power was given to the local Government to declare the Suburbs a part of the Town for purposes of water-supply, the Municipality would have no option but to carry out the orders of Government.

Some discussion took place in Select Committee as to the size of the main. Now, he stated to the Council when he had the honour of introducing the Bill, that if the Government conceded the reduction of contribution towards the sinking fund from 2 to 1 per cent., the difficulties about the 62-inch main would be solved. He said he for one would support the introduction of the 62-inch main; he did declare that, as the Government had been pleased to concede the reduction of the contribution to the sinking fund, the 62-inch main should be adopted. It might be a question whether the 62-inch main would be necessary for the purposes of the Town only, or whether it would suffice for both the Town and Suburbs. Individually, he thought that a 42-inch main would double the present supply, but others held that a 62-inch main would be required, as the wants of the Town were rapidly growing, and a 42-inch main would not be sufficient a few years hence. One thing was, however, clear, that if a 62-inch main was required for the Town, then the Town would not be in a position to give water to the Suburbs without the addition of another main. Even if at present the 62-inch main should yield sufficient water for the Town and Suburbs, a few years hence it might be necessary to have another main to meet the growing wants of the Town, and in that case the Town would be put to additional expenditure for increased supply. That was one view of the question. As regards the other view, which he had endeavoured to represent, it was quite clear that if a 42-inch main would double the present supply, the increased size of the main would benefit the Suburbs, and it was but reasonable and just that the Suburbs should pay a portion of the cost of the increased size. From whatever point of view they considered the question of the main, they would find that the cost of the works and the working expenses and other charges would be so large that a maximum 6 per cent. rate recommended would not be sufficient to meet the total cost, and the result would be, as he had endeavoured to show, that the Town would have to make up the deficiency on account of the Suburbs. But, said the majority of the Committee, the Government having conceded a reduction of the contribution towards the sinking fund, the Corporation ought to pay the extra cost. Now, he for one could not for a moment admit that, when the Government was pleased to make the concession, it ever made it a condition that the benefit of reducing the contribution should go to make up the deficit of the Suburbs for the extension of the water-supply. The question of the reduction of the contribution towards the sinking fund was put upon two grounds; firstly, that the tax-payers of Calcutta were burdened with very heavy taxation; and, secondly, that the 2 per cent. contribution fell chiefly upon the present generation of tax-payers, which was not equitable; but the Government never told them that if the contribution was reduced and the water-supply extended to the Suburbs, the Suburban rate-payers should be relieved of any portion of the cost of the extension of the supply. He would read to them an extract from a letter from the Government of Bengal to the Government of India, recommending the concession of a reduction of the contribution towards the sinking fund. It was as follows:—

"The Government of India are aware of the great importance of filling up the numerous filthy tanks which have hitherto been the cause of so much disease in the town; but the completion of this work depends upon the increase in the supply of river water for the use of the people. The Corporation are now considering a scheme for largely increasing the supply of water, and extending it to the Suburbs, and the Lieutenant-Governor proposes to amend Act V (B.C.) of 1876, so as to give the Suburban Commissioners power to levy a water-rate to cover the expenses incurred on their behalf by the Calcutta Municipality. The work in contemplation will be of such a nature as to last long beyond the present generation. The drainage works, too, are essentially of a permanent nature, and their benefits will extend to posterity; on the other hand, there is no ground for apprehending any decline in the prosperity of Calcutta within any period to which reasonable anticipation can extend. Municipal taxation in Calcutta is very high, and the Lieutenant-Governor believes that any increase in the rates would interfere seriously with the progress of the town. Only once during the ten years, 1870 to 1879, did the aggregate rate fall below 16 per cent., and in four of these years it was 18 or 18½ per cent. It is a question whether, even now, the population of the town is not less than it would be if the rate of municipal taxation were lighter. In the Suburbs, taxation is also high, and it is represented that, if the rate to be levied is to include provision for a 2 per cent. sinking fund contribution, the scheme will probably have to be abandoned. Under these circumstances, the Lieutenant-Governor proposes to make provision in the amending Act for a sinking fund contribution of one per cent. only on all public loans raised for water-supply, on the understanding that the Municipal Commissioners of Calcutta determine to lay a 62-inch main conduit from Pultah; and he would make similar provision with regard to loans for drainage works. He trusts that the Government of India will signify their approval of this measure."

Now, there was not one word in the letter to show that if this concession was made, it would be a sort of set-off against any deficiency in the Municipal funds of the Suburbs on account of water-supply. He submitted that he was quite within the four corners of the Government letter he quoted when he said that, while the Calcutta Corporation should adopt a 62-inch main, it should not be charged with any portion of the cost of the supply to the Suburbs.

Then, he had been told by the Select Committee that the Government had heretofore much assisted the Calcutta Commissioners in carrying out the water-works, and that it had therefore a right to expect that the Commissioners should show some consideration to the Suburbs. He for one readily acknowledged that the Municipality had received assistance from the Government in the prosecution of the water-works; but it seemed to him, and he thought it would be admitted, that as Calcutta was the metropolis of the Empire, there was an inherent obligation on the Government to support the Metropolitan Municipality in carrying out improvements which would make the capital city worthy of the residence of the highest personages in the land. He would not raise the question whether in all matters the Government had been liberal to the Municipality, he meant in its financial relations with the Municipality; but while he acknowledged with gratitude the assistance the Municipality had received from the Government in the execution of the water-works, he could not for a moment admit that that assistance was rendered with any stipulation whatever that the Municipality should in its turn extend the water-supply to the Suburbs. If such a condition had been imposed, the Corporation would have considered at the time whether they should have borrowed the money from the Government or gone to the public for the necessary accommodation.

He had been surprised to observe that an impression prevailed in certain quarters that there was jealousy between Calcutta and the Suburbs. He for one denied that any such jealousy existed. The Calcutta Corporation had never hesitated to lend the benefit of its own works to the Suburbs whenever they applied for it. Not many years ago the Suburbs were allowed to discharge their sewage into the Circular Road sewer, and even now the houses lying on the other side of the Circular Road were allowed to be connected with the sewers; and with regard to water, it was sold to the inhabitants of the Suburbs at a very small charge; indeed, it was notorious that the Suburban people did make use of Calcutta water. The question was, however, whether, taking all these facts into consideration, the circumstances of the Calcutta and Suburban Municipalities were such that they could go together in partnership for the purposes of the water-supply. He saw that in the last annual report of the Suburban Municipality this question was discussed, and the Suburban Commissioners frankly stated that the differences in the condition of the two Municipalities were so great that they could not be fairly yoked together for the purposes of water-supply. He would read an extract from their last administration report. The Suburban Commissioners said—

"These drawbacks are not sufficiently considered by those who unthinkingly clamour for a water-supply like that of Calcutta, and it is not at all unusual for them to remark: 'They have got water-pipes in Calcutta, why don't we have it in the Suburbs?' It requires very little discrimination, however, to understand that what is practicable in a compact area like the city, consisting of some five square miles of closely built, highly rented valuable properties, and with a large well-to-do rate-paying population, may be financially impracticable in a semi-rural suburban township covering four and twenty square miles with a scattered and poor population inhabiting property bearing a comparatively low rate of assessment."

The Suburban Commissioners thus distinctly admitted that the differences in the condition of the two Municipalities were such that it was not practicable, financially, to extend the water-supply to the Suburbs. He endeavoured to show in his dissent that a 1 per cent. rate in Calcutta meant Rs. 1,30,000 per annum, whereas a 1 per cent. rate in the Suburbs meant less than Rs. 25,000, so that, practically, it came to this, that a 6 per cent. water-rate in the Suburbs would yield only as much as a 1 per cent. rate in Calcutta. When such was the difference in the condition of the two Municipalities, was not it preposterous to say that the maximum rate which was levied in Calcutta should also be levied in the Suburbs? An equal rate for equal benefit to the Town and Suburbs, he submitted, was a misnomer. Taking all these things into consideration, he proposed the following amendment, namely that the following section be substituted for section 15:—

"15. After section 160, the following section shall be inserted, namely—

"The local Government may (on the application of the Municipal Commissioners of Calcutta) determine what portion, if any, of the Suburbs of the Town shall be included in the said system of water-supply, and may declare the boundaries thereof in the Calcutta Gazette, and for the purposes of the water-supply, the land within such boundaries as aforesaid shall be deemed to be part of the Town.

"Provided that the Commissioners may with the sanction of the local Government, assess a separate and distinct water-rate upon any such portion of the Suburbs, calculated on a scale sufficient to include interest upon all capital expended in the construction of the works necessary for the purpose of extending such water-supply, together with all charges for maintenance, supervision, and renewal of the same. The Commissioners may require the Commissioners of the Suburban Municipality to arrange for the assessment and collection of the water-rate within any tract belonging to such Municipality, and in that case the Suburban Commissioners shall have all the powers of the Commissioners for the purpose of such assessment and collection under the Act."

The Hon'ble Mr. Mackenzie said—

"This question of the water-supply has now been under the consideration of the Corporation for over two years, and the multitude of Municipal Councillors has not as yet, at least so far as I can see, evolved much practical wisdom. They have been discussing it in meeting, and discussing it in Committee; referring it to experts and sitting in judgment on their referees; chaffering with the Suburban Municipality, and disputing with one another; repudiating their Chairman, and promising reports to Government; with all their usual persistence and energy: but somehow we seem to be as far off as ever from any satisfactory settlement. I confess, Sir, that I for one do not altogether wonder at this result, or lack of result. I cannot see how any complete solution of the complex problem involved could ever be arrived at by the discussions of a heterogeneous body of amateurs, such as the Calcutta Commissioners (when dealing with a matter of this kind) really are. Some of them may perhaps object to being classed as amateurs in respect of any portion of their work. The Corporation, no doubt, has on its Board many able men, who give much of their time to doing what is in their judgment best for the town; but unfortunately the determination of important matters is not always left to those best qualified to deal with them. Everybody wants to have a hand in everything that goes on: and it would really appear as though many of the Commissioners claimed, in virtue of their municipal election, to have become honorary but qualified members, not merely of the Institute of Civil Engineers, but also of the College of Physicians, the Society of Actuaries, the Incorporated Law Society, and numerous other similar bodies There is no professional matter, however petty, or however large, on which these gentlemen do not aspire to guide and instruct, reprove, rebuke, and exhort their responsible advisers. Even the influence and good example of my hon'ble friend, the mover of this amendment, to whom both the Town and the Government owe many debts of gratitude, for much good work and terse business-like speech, has not sufficed to check in some quarters this tendency to waste time in talk. Yet surely of all others this question of the water-supply was one to be determined, not by conflicting votes and party divisions, but by the comprehensive advice of the best professional talent available to Government. What the Municipality might well have done was this. It might have determined in a general way, from its local and special knowledge, wherein the present scheme of water-supply comes short, and to what extent. It might have indicated what were the wants yet remaining to be supplied. It might have settled the amount of money that it was able and willing to spend upon the whole. And, then, it might have invited the Government to assist it by lending the services of its best men to draw up, in consultation with the Municipal Engineer, a complete and well co-ordinated scheme for meeting the wants of the Town. That scheme the Commissioners should have accepted and carried through.

The hon'ble member talks as though there were in existence somewhere a unique and complete scheme, round which all this discussion must centre; and he refers us to the figures embodied in his dissent from the Select Committee's report, as statistics regarding which there can be no possible doubt. I have gone through all the papers available with considerable care, and I find there no such complete and well-reasoned scheme, as I should have expected at this stage of the Commissioners' deliberations I find only a conflicting farrago of suggestions and alternative schedules of works; nothing like an argued examination of this important and complicated question in all its bearings.

I must trouble the Council with a somewhat lengthy review of the history of this matter, in order to vindicate my contention that the section, as framed by the Select Committee, meets fairly and equitably the true requirements of the case.

Mr. Kimber, the Municipal Engineer, started off in 1878 with a scheme which dealt only with the extension of the filtered water-supply, but provided for the inclusion of the Suburbs. He proposed to raise the daily maximum supply from eight to 20 million gallons, giving four millions of that to the Suburbs. In his report Mr. Kimber remarked—

"The health and prosperity of the Town greatly depend upon the condition in these respects of its Suburbs, and the suburban population must, to a great extent, be considered as inhabitants of the town, carrying on their trades within, though living without it. A portion of this population already obtains its supply, though a too limited one, from the standposts at Hastings, and along the Circular and Baug Bazar Roads" (i. e. gratis), "and the people, as a rule, appear well-disposed to pay for the privilege. It is therefore as politic, necessary, and economical a measure to include the Suburbs in the new arrangements, as it would be selfish, churlish, and even suicidal to refuse such a position." I trust that this Council will in the end see its way to saying Amen to Mr. Kimber.

Well, this scheme was deemed too costly for both Town and Suburbs, the total figure amounting to over 59 lakhs of rupees. The annual charge to the Suburbs alone would have been Rs. 1,80,000, requiring a rate of nearly 7½ per cent. to cover it. The Suburbs therefore withdrew from all connection with the matter for the time, and the Calcutta Commissioners on the 17th May 1879 took up the question, and discussed it thenceforward as affecting themselves alone. They appointed a Committee, and this Committee consulted referees—Mr. Bradford Leslie and Mr. Whitfield, than whom no two men better qualified to devise a complete scheme of water-supply could anywhere have been found. But what was referred to these gentlemen was not the general question of the best possible means of meeting all the wants of the Town, but merely a particular modification of Mr. Kimber's scheme of filtered supply (which itself in the main followed the lines of one drawn up some years before by Mr. Leslie himself), supplemented by a further note by Mr. Kimber on the question of extending the unfiltered supply. Mr. Kimber's modified scheme was to cost Rs. 34,70,000. Nothing was said as to the possibility of preventing waste, and economising the use of filtered water generally, and no examination of the advantanges or disadvantages of a complete dual system of supply, filtered and unfiltered, was invited. The reference was, as it seems to me, vitiated by the limitation of its terms.

The referees made, however, a careful report on the plans actually submitted to them, and the point in their report to which I wish to call special attention is this, that they told the Commissioners that they ought, for the Town alone, to have a 62-inch main. It would, they said, be folly to have any smaller size of conduit, the saving of cost being comparatively trivial. The difference in cost between a 42-inch and a 62-inch main is only about 4 lakhs of rupees—a mere trifle when works of such magnitude are involved, and so many advantages secured by the larger main. A 62-inch main would bring down 28 millions of gallons if required; and the head works and distributaries might be regulated to meet the demand as it grew. The scheme advocated by the referees, carefully confined to the four corners of the reference made to them, provided for raising the Calcutta supply to 12 million gallons, and extending somewhat the unfiltered supply, at a total cost of Rs. 33,44,000.

In the ordinary course of things one would have supposed that the referees' opinion given in December 1879 would have settled the question, as the Commissioners had no other more complete scheme before them, and were not looking for any. But the Calcutta Corporation had to satisfy itself that the referees knew what they were writing about. Every specification had to be subjected to discussion and analysis, time being no object, and the opportunity of studying water-engineering too good to lose. For six months the Committee were pulling the scheme to pieces, and at last the majority of them submitted a fourth schedule of proposed works giving the town 12 million gallons of filtered water and 4 millions of unfiltered at a cost of Rs. 33,48,000, but holding staunchly to the 62-inch main. This was in fact after all only the referees' scheme, slightly tinkered, the difference in cost being only Rs. 4,000, and the supply of water identical.

But the Commissioners are no more to be bound by the majority of their own Committee than by their referees. Dr. Mitra and my hon'ble friend opposite were of opinion that 12 millions of gallons were not nearly adequate to the wants of the place. Dr. Mitra is in possession of much curious information, as to the manners and habits of East and West, and he has come to the conclusion that a Calcutta population wants 50 gallons of water per man daily to make it happy, or say 25,000,000 gallons for 500,000 people, although Manchester with all its trade and a population of 600,000 uses only from 12 to 13 million gallons—waste included. Dr. Mitra tells us, however, that the well-to-do inhabitant here "stretches himself under water," once or twice daily in a bath requiring from 50 to 100 gallons to fill it; while in England "the bulk of the community" only take a sponge-bath once a fortnight, and wash their shirts only at equal intervals. There are certainly differences of habits as there are differences of climate between East and West, but the precise facts stated will no doubt interest the Council. In view of these, and other bits of statistical information, hardly suited for mention here, Dr. Mitra said in effect that he cared nothing for future generations. They might find their own tubs. What he wanted was to double the supply of filtered water now available, that all the population might, if it chose, stretch itself in baths daily, and bless the Calcutta Corporation. He thought this might be done with a 42-inch main.

Another member of the Committee was, however, Mr Bruce, whose opinion on a matter of this kind is worth, at a low computation, that of ten ordinary Commissioners. Mr. Bruce wrote a minute which appears to me to show in a very remarkable way the incompleteness of all the schemes hitherto put forward. He showed that no attempt had been made in Calcutta to check the undoubted and excessive waste of filtered water, and that no sufficient consideration had been given to the question of extending the unfiltered supply throughout the town for all the viler uses of the population. He may have gone too far in saying that no extension of the filtered supply had been shown to be necessary. But his minute demonstrates conclusively that up to date the problem of the Calcutta water-supply had not been worked out in all its possible phases. Government certainly has had no complete report or analysis of alternative schemes in any shape yet laid before it. The Commissioners are still considering and debating, and except from the personal statements of my hon'ble friend, we have no information as to the general bent of their discussions. Indeed, as a matter of fact, the only scheme that has ever been officially communicated to Government is Mr. Kimber's original scheme of 1878, and a note by the late Chairman, Mr. Beverley, which the Commissioners decline to recognise as coming from them.

This sketch of all that has passed, so far as Government is either officially or informally aware, seems to me to afford a simple answer to all the statements regarding the impossibility or impropriety of treating the Town and Suburbs together in the matter of the water-supply. That answer is that the thing has never yet been properly worked out. We do not know how far prevention of waste in Calcutta, and the general extension of the cheap unfiltered supply, might reduce the cost of the works required. We have, as I said before, no authoritative scheme before us upon which we can form a final judgment as to the precise burdens that will actually be imposed upon either Town or Suburbs.

This section of the Bill therefore does not do more than enable Government to exercise, in respect of extensions of the water-supply, the powers which the law already gives it in respect of the drainage scheme. It does not bind the Government down to any particular form of extension. Government has no cognizance at present of any scheme which it is bound to support or push The Town and the Suburbs must between them hammer out a plan to suit them, if they are not wise enough to refer the whole question to Government in the manner I have already suggested. The hon'ble member has sought to establish some distinction of kind between extensions of drainage and extensions of water-supply. I can see no such distinction. The reason why the question of extending the drainage system has not come up more prominently hitherto is simply because the Town has yet so much to do to complete its internal arrangements.

I cannot conceive, Sir, how any resident of Calcutta can be so short-sighted as to wish to confine such sanitary improvements as this within the limits of the Circular Road. The health of the Town is intimately dependent upon that of the Suburbs. The epidemic fever of Nuddea invades us from the north. From the south came creeping in only last year the foul and fatal plague of beri-beri. Not once, but often have the officers of the 24-Pergunnahs seen cholera sweeping down upon the town from the villages and marts outside. I myself when attached to that district years ago watched more than one such invasion of cholera as it marched from village to village along the principal roads until it fell upon the Town.

Calcutta ought not only to do away with its own vileness, but endeavour to secure a broad and wholesome belt of suburbs round it upon every side. Of course its action must be limited by financial considerations, and no one is more awake than I am to the heavy pressure of taxation in the Town. But in this particular instance, on the showing of the Municipal Commissioners themselves the possible loss to the Town, is after all trifling in the extreme. They reckon it, I believe, at an outside figure of Rs. 25,000. But the proof that there must be any loss at all rests, as I shall show, on a very uncertain and insufficient basis. But, however that may be, I submit confidently to this Council, that the manner in which the Commissioners have dealt with this question, the interminable delays and discussions in which they seem to be forever losing themselves, are such that Government could not, consistently with its duty, any longer leave the water-supply of the Suburbs entirely to the discretion of the Town Corporation. That body is not bound by anything my hon'ble friend opposite may say, and is quite capable of being very unreasonable in the matter. The Government has delegated certain of its powers and functions to the Corporation. But it cannot, I think, continue to abandon the determination of this important matter to such an independent, dilatory, and, possibly selfish body. The care of the sanitary interests of the metropolis, as a whole, must, when such large questions are involved, rest to some extent with Government. It must decide where drainage must go and water-supply be carried, and in so doing it will not, we may feel sure, unreasonably sacrifice the interests of either Town or Suburbs. It was in view to getting an equitable settlement of this matter of water-supply that the Lieutenant-Governor, in September 1880, moved the Commissioners not to overlook the Suburbs in their discussions. This was, I maintain, a most legitimate interference, which only finds formal warrant in the section that we are now discussing.

I have said, Sir, that we have no complete scheme before us, but there is sufficient on record to show that the theory that the Suburbs should pay a rate limited only by the demand of the Town is not either necessary or reasonable. The Council will remember that, from February 1879 to September 1880, the town was considering only its own wants, and that its own engineer, its referees, and its Committee all admitted that a 62-inch main was what the Town ought to have, even if the Suburbs were put out of sight altogether. The papers also show that if the Town had a 62-inch main, it could not only supply itself, but, by erecting certain additional engines, filters, and so on, and by extending the distributaries, could supply also a large tract of Suburbs. It would be in the position of a man with a small family and a good cow. He gets the cow for his own use in the first place, and he wisely gets a good one rather than a scanty milker, and sells the surplus milk to his own profit and the advantage of his neighbours. My hon'ble friend has tried to place us on the horns of a dilemma. I understood him to say that if the Town got a 62-inch main on its own account, it would be because it required the reserve of power thus secured to it for future extensions of its own population. If it got it because the Suburbs wanted water, the Suburbs ought to pay their share of the cost. The fact, however, seems to be that the Town must have a 62-inch main in any case, and that the quantity of water which such a main can be made to supply, supplemented by unfiltered water, is more than the Town and Suburbs together can want for very many years to come. The future may be left to meet its own wants. This being so, Mr. Beverley, the late Chairman of the Corporation, being a good man of business, and having also a reasonable regard to the well-being of his neighbours, saw that the Town, having its 62-inch main, might supply the Suburbs and make a handsome profit on the operation. He showed that by spending Rs. 10,70,000 more on head-works and distributaries, the Town could give the Suburbs four million gallons daily, and, by then levying an equal water-rate in Town and Suburbs, actually lighten the burden which the Town would have to bear if it stood selfishly aloof, while if the Suburbs were willing to pay a 6 per cent. rate on the extra outlay, the Town would actually make 10 per cent. on its money. Those figures were, moreover, based on the theory of a 2 per cent. sinking fund.

This scheme was forwarded to the Suburban Commissioners for consideration, with, at any rate, the knowledge of the Committee of the Corporation (for they decided to "await the reply of the Suburban Municipality" before taking it up themselves); and it was sent to Government by the Chairman for information, though with the intimation that the Commissioners had not yet accepted it. It was in the letter forwarding that proposal, however, that the Chairman raised, for the first time, the question whether the sinking fund contribution might not be lowered to 1 per cent. That suggestion was beyond all doubt made, if not in consequence of, certainly in connection with, the proposed extension to the Suburbs. The Suburban Commissioners at once said they were willing to adopt the proposal of contributing an equal rate, and Government on its side urged the Corporation to send up a definite scheme, promising to take up the sinking fund question in connection therewith. But the Commissioners now, as the hon'ble gentleman informed us in Select Committee, repudiate entirely their late Chairman and his scheme, and desire to charge the Suburbs a full share of the cost of the 62-inch main, which originally they meant to have for themselves alone. They accept the reduction of sinking fund, which Government has given in the belief that they would make the larger main for the Town alone as the only really permanent style of conduit. But they turn round and tell us that it is not certain they would adopt this style of main if the Suburbs were not to be supplied. Sir, I say nothing is certain in dealing with the Corporation in a matter of this kind. Its Chairman binds it to nothing; its Committees bind it to nothing; its schemes come and go like clouds upon water. It is little else than a manufactory of speeches and an arsenal of delays. We cannot tell yet to what scheme the Corporation may pin its faith. But there is every reason why we should believe that no scheme, such as Government can, in the general interests of the metropolis, approve, would require the levy of more than a·6 per cent. rate in any part of the suburbs to which it is proposed to carry the water.

The hon'ble gentleman tells us that no parallel can be drawn between Calcutta and the Suburbs, because Calcutta is a compact town and the suburbs are scattered over a wide area. No one has yet proposed to carry the water-supply into every jungle and hamlet in the environs of Calcutta. It is proposed simply to extend it to tracts in the immediate vicinity, the circumstances of which are sufficiently like those of the Town to warrant the doing so. It is futile to raise false issues of this kind. Nor are statements of the comparative productiveness of the rates any more to the point. The one question is whether extension is financially warranted per se. What is required is the elaboration of a water-supply scheme in which all the conditions of the problem, as affecting both Town and Suburbs, shall be properly examined and worked out.

I believe the public would wish to see this done by a Committee of experts appointed by Government, or by Government and the Town conjointly. I am assured by competent authority that the questions of economizing and regulating the filtered supply, and of completing the unfiltered supply, may have a most important bearing on the financial aspects of the case, and that much misapprehension exists as to the cost and merits of the dual system. All these points require thorough working out, and, for myself, I feel bound to say that the experience of the past does not warrant the belief that the task can safely be left to the unaided talents of the Town Commissioners. Be that as it may, this section, as it stands in the Bill, only gives the Government the powers it ought to have in respect of ordering extension in general terms; it compels the Town to follow no particular plan, and it secures to the Corporation what is believed to be in any possible case a reasonable return for any outlay it may incur. Government will not, we may be sure, sanction needless or unduly costly works, or allow the Suburbs to rob the Town any more than the Town the Suburbs. At the same time it may be hoped that the Town will see what its true interests are, and not seek in a matter like this to drive a Jew's bargain with the Suburban Municipality. The hon'ble member denies that the Town feels any jealousy towards the Suburbs in respect of allowing it wholesome water. Let us trust that the Corporation will justify this assertion by their action in the future. They ought, in their own interest, to be not only benevolent but beneficent, and even generous if generosity be really called for."

The Hon'ble Kristodas Pal in reply said he believed he spoke the sense of the Council when he acknowledged its obligation to the hon'ble member for the elaborate essay on the water-supply of Calcutta, with which he had favoured it, and he dared say that the "chattering pies" to whom he had referred in such flattering terms would also acknowledge their obligation to him. It was not his vocation to defend the Municipal Commissioners of Calcutta here; he must confine himself to the provisions of the Bill before the Council, but as his hon'ble friend had been pleased to call the Commissioners a body of "heterogenous amateurs," because they ventured to talk on such an engineering question as the water-supply extension, he (Baboo Kristodas Pal) supposed that the views and opinions advanced by him on the subject did not emanate from an "amateur." The hon'ble member had given the Council a detailed analysis of the different schemes laid before the Commissioners for the extension of the water-supply. He would not trouble the Council with a review of that analysis, but the facts which the hon'ble gentleman had so carefully noted showed that the Commissioners had not been idle, and that as the question involved a very large outlay, the Commissioners were bound in duty and in justice to the rate-payers to give the matter their maturest consideration. He was sure that the question would long ere this have been settled if the extension of the supply to the Suburbs had not been mooted by the Government. The original scheme included the extension of the supply to the Suburbs, but that scheme was abandoned, because the Suburban Municipality acknowledged their inability to bear the cost. The question had, however, been again raised and pressed upon the Commissioners by the Government, and the Commissioners felt themselves bound to consider the proposals of Government, hence the delay of which his hon'ble friend so bitterly complained. He had also spoken of the dual system, and other points in regard to which BABOO KRISTODAS PAL would not take up the time of the Council. The question of the dual system involved important details which the Council was not in a position to discuss, but he did not doubt that the views which had just been advanced would be duly taken into consideration by the "amateurs" to whom his hon'ble friend had so kindly referred. He readily admitted that the sanitary interests of the Town were intimately bound up not only with those of the immediate Suburbs, but also of the villages round about. As his hon'ble friend had himself shown, cholera had been known to extend to the Town step by step from villages in the 24-Pergunnahs, and, in order to protect itself, Calcutta ought certainly to be ahead, but he wished that the treasury of the Calcutta Municipality had been rich enough to meet the many obligations which the extended views of his hon'ble friend would impose upon the Town. There was a phrase used in the last budget minute of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister, of which BABOO KRISTODAS PAL was here reminded; he meant the very significant words "coercive philanthropy." He could not but say that if the Calcutta Municipality were to be burdened with any portion of the cost of the extension of the water-supply to the Suburbs or other environs on the ground that the Town was in a better position to pay, it would be a species of "coercive philanthropy" which the rate-payers of Calcutta could not be expected to appreciate. His friend had told them that it was not intended to extend the supply to all parts of the Suburbs; that only such parts of the Suburbs would be included as might be said to run on all fours with Calcutta. If these parts of the Suburbs did really run on all fours with Calcutta, there would have been no difficulty at all; but what was the fact? Taking the best parts of the Suburbs, he found that the financial results of taxation in Calcutta and the Suburbs were widely different. While a one per cent. rate in Calcutta yielded Rs. 1,30,000 per annum, even in the best parts of the Suburbs which were proposed to be included in the water-supply scheme, a one per cent. rate would yield annually only Rs. 24,000, and while this vast disparity existed between the material condition of Calcutta and that of the Suburbs, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL contended that it was not reasonable to speak of equality between the two places. And, lastly, his hon'ble friend said that properly speaking there was no definite scheme before the Commissioners; if this was really the case, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL did not understand with what consistency it was proposed to fix the water-rate for the Suburbs definitively.

HIS HONOUR the PRESIDENT said that before putting the question he should like to allude very briefly to his hon'ble friend's main argument. There seemed to be a wish to make the Council believe, and HIS HONOUR supposed from what had passed elsewhere, to make the public believe also, that the Government was endeavouring to force on the rate-payers of Calcutta the liability of providing water at the expense of Calcutta to the Suburbs. HIS HONOUR had no hesitation in saying that there was not the shadow of foundation for this inference. He had seen this statement made very frequently by members of the Corporation at their meetings, but they had nothing whatever before them to warrant that assertion. He had spoken of the advantages which the Corporation had received from the Government, and their obligation to look with consideration on the Suburbs, not with a desire to ask for their charity on behalf of the Suburban population; but he had mentioned the assistance given by Government as a reason why the Calcutta Corporation were now in a position to look at the claims of the residents of the Suburbs in a broad and liberal spirit.

So far from the extension of the water-supply throwing any additional burthen on the Town, the evidence, such as it was, was quite the other way.

Although it was quite true, as the hon'ble member on the right (Mr. Mackenzie) had said, that, although the question had been under the consideration of the Corporation for years, no definite and intelligible scheme had been finally determined on, yet whatever schemes had been drawn up and prepared by the Corporation's own officers had all shown that a supply of water might be given to the Suburbs not only with no loss to the Corporation, but with a considerable reduction in the water-rate levied in the Town.

There was not the shadow of a doubt that the extension of the water-supply to the Suburbs would not throw any increased liability on the Town, and His Honour could not do better than refer to a paper drawn up by the Chairman of the Municipality, which was prepared by him in consultation with the Municipal Engineer, and laid before the Corporation. After considering all the schemes, imperfect as they were, which were before them, the Chairman pointed out the commercial advantage to the Town of extending the works to the Suburbs. He said—

"It is notorious that a large concern can often be worked more economically than a small one; and the remark applies with greater or less force to the Calcutta water-works Take for example the proposed new main conduit. It has been shown that a 62-inch conduit will in the long run be far more economical than a 42-inch conduit; the larger main will convey 20 million gallons daily, the smaller main 8 million gallons only; yet the cost of the larger is only 17 lakhs against 13 lakhs for the smaller. Even were the smaller main adopted, it is clear that it would be more economical that the whole available supply furnished by it, namely 8 million gallons, should be fully utilized than that the conduit should be used to bring down 4 million gallons only. So with other works and charges for establishment and general superintendence.

"The main question, then, is, would it be profitable to the Town to extend its water-works into the Suburbs on the understanding that the same rates were levied in the Suburbs that are levied in the Town. The Engineer has worked out this problem, and the answer seems to be in the affirmative. Mr. Kimber has worked upon the basis of the scheme set forth in the Committee's first report. That scheme, it will be remembered, provided for an increase of 4,000,000 gallons to the Town's daily supply of filtered water, besides increasing the supply of unfiltered water (for roads and latrines) from about 1,200,000 to 4,000,000 gallons."

The Chairman then went on to show at considerable length, and he showed conclusively, that it would not only pay, but would yield a very considerable profit to the Municipality on the extra outlay required, and yet the Council was told that there was an intention on the part of the Government to impose an additional burden on the Town for the benefit of the Suburbs. It was quite true that there were no absolutely reliable figures to go upon, as the Municipality had hitherto neglected to determine, as he said before, what schemes they would elect; but all the figures there were, and it might be understood that these figures, drawn up by the Municipal officers, were not likely to take an unduly lenient view of the position of the Suburbs, showed plainly, as far as they showed anything, that there was not the slightest ground for saying that there would be any extra burden thrown on the Town; but, on the contrary, the extension of the works to the Suburbs would bring considerable relief to the Town. They had been told that it was very wrong for the Government to interfere with the Calcutta Corporation in the matter of this water-supply, and that it was the general wish of the inhabitants that such questions should be left in the hands of the Municipality. Whatever might be the opinion of the Municipality themselves, he hardly believed that this was the view of the public at large any way. His Honour thought that if the public had an opportunity of seeing how little had been done in a very long time, they would consider that it was quite time for the Government to interfere and put pressure on the Municipality to get the question settled one way or the other. Objection had been taken to the assertion that the Calcutta Municipality had shown a certain amount of jealousy in assenting to extend to the Suburbs the advantages of a good water-supply which they themselves enjoyed. His Honour might mention as a proof of this that a small scheme had been prepared by the Municipal Engineer for relieving the Municipality of the consumption of a good deal of their filtered water by substituting unfiltered water for certain purposes. The actual cost of that scheme out of pocket was about two and a half lakhs, and the effect of it would be to give the Municipality an unfiltered supply to the extent of four millions of gallons daily, for purposes for which unfiltered water would answer, in the place of 1,200,000 gallons which the Town had at present. This would set free for drinking purposes an equal amount of good filtered water. This scheme had been before the Municipality for over a year certainly, and nothing whatever had been yet done in regard to it. It remained just where it was, and although one would think the matter could have been settled in a fortnight, it had gone lingering and lingering on, and had since been shelved simply because the Commissioners could not agree upon such a simple and obvious question as that. How could it possibly be said that no jealousy was shown towards the Suburbs by the Calcutta Municipality when it was seen that they would rather work their latrines and filth depôts with filtered water, than use the unfiltered supply, to make a supply available for the Suburbs of good filtered water. With a small outlay of less than three lakhs, the whole thing would be done, and the water required for the Suburbs made available; but because they were urged to take up in earnest and with intelligence such a plain matter as this, the Council were told that the Government was endeavouring to overburden the Municipality for the benefit of the Suburbs. A great deal had been said about the extent of the Suburbs, and pictures had been drawn of distant isolated hamlets receiving a supply of water at the expense of the people of Calcutta; but the hon'ble member must be perfectly well aware that the plan proposed was to supply water to certain definite thickly-populated streets and tracts in only those portions of the Suburbs which were near to Calcutta. The whole of the papers showed that the Corporation knew perfectly well what was intended, and that the districts in question had been actually surveyed and valued. The hon'ble member had said that the Government was bound to look upon Calcutta as the metropolis of the Empire, and that that was a sufficient answer to the argument that, as Government had helped the Town, therefore the Town should help the Suburbs; but HIS HONOUR in such a matter could not draw such a distinction. He saw no reason why one side of a road was to be favoured because it fell within the metropolis, while the other side was shut out of all advantages. The Suburbs were to all intents and purposes a part of the metropolis, and he could not see why we should treat rate-payers, for instance at the end of Chowringhee, with special consideration, and show none to the houses a few yards off where resided a great number of respectable Pleaders of the High Court, simply because there was an imaginary line drawn at one end of that street. HIS HONOUR must say that he thought the whole of this opposition most unreasonable. As far as he was concerned, if this Act was passed, both Calcutta and the Suburbs would be fully consulted, and their interests equally guarded, and he could assure the Council that there was no desire to do anything to the disadvantage of either Calcutta or the Suburbs.

The HON'BLE KRISTODAS PAL's motion was then put and negatived.

The HON'BLE KRISTODAS PAL then moved that in section 15 the word "suburbs" be substituted for the word "environs," and the words "the Suburban Municipality" for the words "any Suburban Municipality."

The HON'BLE MR. MACKENZIE observed that he saw no necessity for the amendment. The section followed the lines of section 168 of the Act relating to drainage. This was intended to be merely an enabling section, and as there was no definition of "suburbs" in the Act, there would be no real difference between the signification of the words "suburbs" and "environs."

The HON'BLE the ADVOCATE-GENERAL said he thought, after what had fallen from HIS HONOUR the PRESIDENT showing that there was no difference between the environs at one end of the Town or the other, legislation on the subject should not be partial in any one direction, but should be as wide as possible, the intention being to enable the Government to extend the provisions of the Act relating to water-supply to any Suburban Municipality the Government might think fit.

The HON'BLE PEARY MOHUN MOOKERJEE pointed out that the word "suburbs" had been defined in Act XXI of 1857, and in several Acts of the Council where the word "suburbs" had been used, reference had been made to the definition in Act XXI of 1857, as distinguishing the Suburbs from the station of Howrah.

HIS HONOUR the PRESIDENT remarked that the Government was taking power to extend the water-supply to places which could afford to pay for the extension. It was well-known that the Government had no intention whatever to extend the water-supply to Howrah, but the object of the provision was to enable the Government to have extensions made wherever it was fit and proper to do so. It was quite possible that the outlying stations of Chitpore and Cossipore might sometime hence be in a position to need a water-supply, and the Commissioners themselves might wish to supply those places with water from the pipes which ran alongside. Why should the hands of the Government and the Municipality be tied up so as to prevent such desirable extensions? This was a purely permissive provision, and he thought the Council might rely on the Government doing nothing that might be unfair towards the Calcutta Municipality.

The motion was then put and negatived.

The HON'BLE KRISTODAS PAL moved that the following be substituted for clause 1 of section 16 of the Bill:—

Introduction of new section after section 169

"16. After section 162, the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

Contribution towards pensions of Police officers.

"162A. The Police Budget may, if the local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, shall so direct, include a charge for pensions payable under the orders and rules of Government to all officers and servants on whose behalf provision for the payment of salary has ordinarily been made in such budget, and who may retire from service after the commencement of this Act; such charge shall be payable by the Commissioners, but shall not exceed three-fourths of the total of such pensions."

He was not in a position to say whether any orders had been received from the Government of India in reply to the representation which had been made on this subject by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, but if BÁBOO KRISTODAS PAL had the option he would move the entire omission of this provision in conformity with what fell from the President on a former occasion. But as the Council was not in a position to accept such a motion, he would move the amendment which stood in his name. The Commissioners were of opinion that a ten per cent. contribution towards pensions would saddle them with a higher proportion of payment than they ought in equity to bear, and they thought it would be fair and equitable if they were to pay only three-fourths of the pensions of such officers as might retire after the passing of the Act. He might mention that a ten per cent. contribution would amount to a payment of about Rs. 17,000 per annum, and he found that the pensions of officers who had retired within the last ten years amounted to about Rs. 16,000 per annum; so that a ten per cent. contribution would practically cover the pensions of officers who had retired during the last ten years, and thus relieve the Government of that charge altogether. As that was not the intention of Government, he submitted his amendment for the consideration of the Council.

The HON'BLE MR. COCKERELL said he thought there was no objection to the amendment which had been proposed. When the services of officers of Government were made over to foreign states or for employment on wards' estates, a contribution of 20 per cent. was made both for furlough and pensions; in the present case contribution on account of furlough was not included, and it was calculated that 13 per cent. on gross salaries would cover pensions; but as the Government paid one-fourth of these salaries and the Municipality three-fourths, a ten per cent. contribution on aggregate salaries would, it was thought, be a fair contribution from the Municipality on account of pensions. As the Commissioners, however, preferred to pay three-fourths of the actual sum paid towards pensions, he thought there would be no objection to accept the proposal. MR. COCKERELL believed the result would be that the Municipality would pay less now and more hereafter. In all pensionary matters the ordinary rule was, and he thought it the equitable one, that pensionary allowances should come from the same source as pay, and that the charge should be divided between the Municipal and Government funds in the same proportion that the pay itself was divided.

The HON'BLE MR. MACKENZIE remarked that he did not see any objection to accept the section now proposed, excepting that it would probably be worse for the Municipality in the long run to pay three-fourths of actual pensions, than to pay a contribution of ten per cent. on aggregate salaries. The contribution of ten per cent. had been fixed on actuarial principles, such as satisfied the Government of India in regulating its liabilities for the pensions of servants lent to foreign states and bodies, and a proportionate deduction had been made on account of the contribution of one-fourth now given by Government towards the charges in the Police budget. The Municipal Commissioners had, however, their own way of calculating and preferred their own figures. He might perhaps give one example to illustrate the effect of adopting the amendment. There were some of the higher paid members of the Police Force who would probably retire in the course of a year or two, and these would draw substantial pensions. Under the provision, as it stood in the Bill, the Municipality would only have had to pay ten per cent. on their salaries up to the date of their retirement and nothing more, but they would now have to pay three-fourths of their pensions so long as those officers lived. He observed in the reports of the Municipal meeting, held with reference to the Bill, that there was much misconception as to the meaning and bearing of the section as it stood. It was for instance entirely erroneous to say that it was proposed that the Municipality "should make payments towards pensions which were already being paid." The section provided for a levy of ten per cent. on salaries, and no charge could therefore be made on account of men drawing not salaries but pensions. He thought the Commissioners were hasty in putting forward their amendment, but it was their own doing entirely. There was another matter as to which he thought it right to enter a sort of caveat. The Government now paid one-fourth of the charges on account of the police, but that payment was made not as a matter of legal liability but as a matter of grace. There was nothing in the Act as it now stood to bind the Government to pay any portion whatever of the charges contained in the police budget, and though it might accept the proposal to pay one-fourth of pensions under the proposed amendment, this was not to be construed into binding it for ever to pay one-fourth of the salaries of police officers. The proposal to pay three-fourths of the aggregate amount of pensions came from the Commissioners, but the Government was perfectly willing to accept the amendment. The wording of the last clause of the section should be slightly modified to meet the change in the first.

The motion was then put, and after verbal changes the amended section was agreed to.

The Hon'ble Kristodas Pal moved that the following clause be inserted at the end of section 23 of the Bill:—

"Nothing in this section contained shall be construed to apply to the sale of drugs used by practitioners of indigenous medicine, whether these are recognized by the British Pharmacopœia or not; when such drugs are not sold in a shop or place where medicines recognized by such Pharmacopœia are dispensed upon prescription."

The Hon'ble Peary Mohun Mookerjee said he thought the objection taken to section 23 was well-founded. The section as it stood would not only put an unnecessary restraint on the sale of native drugs, and the preparation of Hindu medicines, but it would also give rise to this anomaly that, while unregistered shop-keepers would be prevented from selling such simple articles as soda and borax, they would be at liberty to sell such highly poisonous drugs as cobra poison, rasakurpura, a compound of the chloride and the perchloride of mercury, and orpiment, a natural compound of arsenic and sulphur which were not recognized by the British Pharmacopœia. The common ground which several articles occupy both as medicinal drugs and articles of ordinary and domestic consumption has made legislation on the subject of drugs a matter of great difficulty. Even in England, where only one system of medicine prevailed, the difficulty was far greater here where several systems of medicine obtained. Baboo Peary Mohun Mookerjee feared also that certificated compounders trained in the European system would be ill-qualified to dispense native drugs of the nature and properties of which they knew nothing. On these grounds he would support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Ameer Ali observed that the proceedings in the Coroner's Court showed that poisonous drugs were constantly being sold for medicinal purposes and this caused much mischief. He would suggest the insertion of the word "non-poisonous" before the word "drugs."

The Hon'ble Mr. Mackenzie said the question of the sale of poisons had repeatedly come before the Government, but it had been found very difficult to deal with the subject. There was no doubt that many of these drugs, like many European drugs, were poisonous when used in large quantities. But at present he thought it was much better not to interfere with shops where drugs were sold and dispensed according to the native fashion, and to confine the operation of the Bill to places where medicines were dispensed after the European method. The hope was that gradually people would learn to go to the shops where they were safe, and in time it might be possible to do away with unlicensed drug shops of all kinds.

His Honour the President remarked that the question of the sale of poisonous drugs had been discussed by the Government of India and all the local Governments, and the conclusion had been generally come to that it would not be safe to legislate on the subject.

The Hon'ble Ameer Ali withdrew his amendment, and the original motion was then agreed to.

On the motion of the Hon'ble Kristodas Pal, the following section was substituted for section 24 of the Bill—

"24. For the first clause of section 296, the following clause shall be substituted namely:—

"The Commissioners, or any person authorized by them in that behalf, may at all reasonable times enter into and inspect any place kept for the sale of drugs, or in which drugs are sold, and if they have reason to suspect that any drug in the said place is adulterated, or by reason of age or the effect of climate has become inert or unwholesome, or has otherwise become deteriorated in such a manner as to lessen its efficacy, to change its operation or to render it noxious, may remove the same on giving a receipt specifying the nature and quantity of the drug removed and its approximate value; and if it appear to a Justice of the Peace that the said drug removed as aforesaid is adulterated, or has become inert, unwholesome, or deteriorated as aforesaid, he may order the same to be destroyed or to be so disposed of as to him may seem fit. If it shall appear to the said Justice that the drug so removed is not adulterated, or has not become inert, unwholesome, or deteriorated as aforesaid, the person from whose shop or place it has been taken shall be entitled to have it restored to him, and it shall be in the discretion of the said Justice to award him such compensation, not exceeding the actual loss which has been sustained, as such Justice may think proper."

Inspection of drugs.

Compensation if drug be not adulterated, &c.

The Hon'ble Kristodas Pal moved that the following section be substituted for section 26 of the Bill :—

"26. After section 310, the following section shall be inserted, namely :—

"310A. The Commissioners shall from time to time grant licenses to persons applying for such, for the sale, at burning grounds, of fuel and other articles used for the cremation of dead bodies, and shall in meeting, other than an ordinary meeting, prescribe a scale of rates for the sale of such articles; and any person not so licensed who shall within three hundred yards of any such burning ground sell or offer for sale any such fuel or other articles, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees.

Introduction of new section after section 310.

Power to license fuel shops at burning grounds.

"The Commissioners may on good and sufficient reason revoke or withdraw any such license they may think fit, and any person to whom any such license is granted, who shall charge for the sale of any such article any higher rate than the rate fixed for such article in such scale, shall, at the discretion of the Commissioners, be liable to have his license cancelled, and shall also be liable to a fine not exceeding ten rupees.

"The Commissioners shall not be bound to grant a fresh license to any person whose license may have been revoked, withdrawn, or cancelled, under the provisions of this section."

He said the object of this amended section was to encourage competition, and to enable the Commissioners to prescribe a fixed scale of rates for the sale of fuel and other articles used for the cremation of dead bodies. If the Commissioners had power to regulate the rates, all that was wanted would be attained. He need not repeat the circumstances which led to the introduction of this section in the Bill. There had been great scandals in connection with the sale of fuel and other articles at the burning, ghats and it was therefore deemed necessary to license vendors and to regulate their charges. But as a fixed scale of rates for the sale of fuel had not the sanction of law, the proposed section would give that sanction.

The motion was agreed to.

On the motion of the Hon'ble Kristodas Pal the Bill was then passed.

The Council was adjourned sine die.

CULTIVATION OF THE SURGOOJA PLANT IN THE NUDDEA DISTRICT.

No. 12MA, dated Alipore, the 28th March 1881.

From—F. B. PEACOCK, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Financial Dept.

REFERRING to your letter No. 241, dated 1st December, with enclosure, I have the honour to submit, for the information of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, the following report on the cultivation of surgooja plant in the district of Nuddea.

2. This plant is cultivated in the sub-divisions of Chooadanga, Jhenidah, and Meherpore, and bears different names in the different sub-divisions. In Meherpore the Hindoos call it surgooja and the Mahomedans gunja. In Jhenidah it is known as the guji or surguji, while sukargoojari is the name given to it in Chooadanga, which is apparently a corruption of the word surgooja. Mahomedans form the chief element of the population of this district, and as they have a prejudice to pronounce the word sukar (swine), they omit the first two syllables and call the plant goojari.

3. This plant is not an indigenous product of the Nuddea or any adjacent district, but is reported to have been brought originally from Chota Nagpore, where it is said to be in extensive cultivation. The Sub-Divisional Officer of Chooadanga reports that the cultivation of surgooja was introduced into the Nuddea district about 30 years ago by one Siboo Boona of Barribonha in thana Gangani of the Meherpore sub-division, and has gradually extended until, in the sub-division of Chooadanga alone, it is estimated to cover an area of 4,500 bighas. The Sub-Divisional Officer of Jhenidah, a sub-division of Jessore, writes to say that the plant has been known in his sub-division for many years

4. The plant is generally grown as a second crop following rice, tolerably high lands being preferable for its cultivation. The seed is sown in October, three seers to a bigha, and the plant flowers in December. In January the seed-pods form and mature, and by the end of the month, or early in February, the plant is cut and the seeds gathered. The method of cultivation is comparatively simple. Two ploughings only are given before the seed is sown, and no weeding is needed.

5. The cost of cultivation amounts to about Rs. 2 per bigha:—

	Rs.	A.	P.
Ploughing and sowing	1	5	0
Cutting and thrashing	0	9	0
Seed from mahajun	0	2	0

The outturn from a bigha of land is from 2 to 3 maunds of seed, or on the average 2½ maunds. The value of the seed is Rs. 4 per maund. Thus an average crop gives a profit to the ryot of about Rs. 8 per bigha, from which, however, has to be deducted half the rent of the land, the crop being a second crop.

6. The Small Cause Court Judge of Chooadanga in his report to His Honour, which forms the enclosure of your letter under reference, stated that a maund of surgooja seed yielded about 14½ seers of oil. This proportion is considered by the Sub-Divisional Officers of Jhenidah and Chooadanga as rather high. The former puts it at 10 seers, and the latter at 13 seers 2 chittacks. One maund of mustard yields about 14 seers 1 chittack of oil, but this difference is compensated by the fact that the surgooja is a more certain and easily grown crop, and its yield for the same area larger.

7. The surgooja seed is rarely used unmixed in the preparation of oil, but generally in combination with mustard and linseed, in the proportion of one to four. The oil expressed from the surgooja is thicker and less palatable, and is used chiefly to adulterate lamp oil. Some of the poorer classes use the adulterated oil in the preparation of curries, but the flavour is not liked, and all who can afford it use pure mustard oil, keeping the mixed oil for lighting purposes only.

8. The Sub-Divisional Officer of Jhenidah reports—"It appears to me the plant belongs to the natural order Linacreæ. Indeed, I am not sure that the plant is not the Linum Frigynum to be met with in some gardens grown as a showy annual."

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The results of observations at the Alipore Observatory are not rigorously comparable with the registers of past years (at the Park Street Observatory). The barometer is about 3 feet higher at Alipore, and, other things being equal, reads therefore ·003 lower. The diurnal range of temperature is also greater at Alipore, and the mean temperature apparently about 2·9 lower; and finally, the thermometer, which has furnished the record of temperature at the Surveyor-General's Office during the last 20 years and upwards, is found to read 0·6 higher than the Kew standard thermometer, which is the standard of reference at the present Observatory.

Meteorological Office, India,
The 12th April 1881.

H. F. Blanford,
Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of India.

Report of Fluctuation of Traffic on the Eastern Bengal Railway for the four weeks ending 26th February 1881.

Report on Goods Traffic for the four weeks ending 26th February 1881.

EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY COMPANY, TRAFFIC SUPERINTENDENT'S OFFICE, SEALDAH TERMINUS.

Dated Calcutta, the 17th March 1881.

From—WILLIAM INNES, ESQ., Traffic Superintendent,

To—The Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway, Sealdah.

IN submitting the attached report of traffic for four weeks ending the 26th February last, I beg to point out that the total weight of goods carried over this Railway during that period was 7,38,639 maunds, showing an increase of 1,23,423 maunds, as compared with the corresponding period last year.

From the report, it will be seen that the following commodities have chiefly contributed to this increase, viz. cotton, gunny, jute, seeds, sugar, Indian tea, turmeric, and miscellaneous goods. On the other hand, there has been a decrease in rice, hides, railway material, salt, tobacco, and European twist.

Increases.

Cotton in bundles and bales ... ... Mds. 2,639
This increase is due to the market value still continuing high.

Gunny ... ... „ 12,973
As mentioned in the last report, there is still a large demand for gunnies.

Jute in drums and bales ... ... „ 11,190
This increase is due to a brisk demand in the market and firm prices at home.

Seeds ... ... „ 20,388
The market still continues firm, and good prices are being realized.

Sugar ... ... „ 5,424
This increase is due to a steady market with fair prices being given for good quality.

Indian tea ... ... „ 1,579
This small increase is no doubt due to the facility afforded for transit by the present Cachar service.

Turmeric ... ... „ 1,062
This is no doubt due to a slight rise in the market.

Miscellaneous goods ... ... „ 99,978
This large increase is still due to the facilities afforded for the general transmission of goods over the line.

Decreases.

Grain, including rice ... ... Mds. 15,700
This decrease is due to a falling market which is at present over-stocked.

Hides ... ... „ 1,879
This decrease is also due to a dull market with but few demands for export.

Railway material, foreign ... ... „ 5,046
The material for the Kawnea Tramway having now gone forward accounts for this decrease.

Salt ... ... „ 4,863
This decrease is due to a dull market.

Tobacco ... ... „ 3,889
There has been no demand for export, hence decrease.

European twist ... ... „ 943
There has been little done in this commodity during the period for which this report has been submitted, hence the falling off.

he has been restored or has had the opportunity of returning to the country from whence he was surrendered.

The period of one month shall be considered as the limit of the period during which the prisoner may, with the view of securing the benefits of this Article, return to the country from whence he was surrendered.

This stipulation does not apply to crimes committed after the extradition.

ARTICLE VII.

The requisition for extradition must always be made by the way of diplomacy, and to wit, in the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg, by the British Minister in Luxemburg, and in the United Kingdom to the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs by the Foreign Minister in Great Britain, who, for the purposes of this Treaty, is recognized by Her Majesty as a Diplomatic Representative of the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg.

The requisition for the extradition of an accused person must be accompanied by a warrant of arrest issued by the competent authority of the State requiring the extradition, and by such evidence as, according to the laws of the place where the accused is found, would justify his arrest if the crime had been committed there.

If the requisition relates to a person already convicted, it must be accompanied by the sentence of condemnation passed against the convicted person by the competent Court of the State that makes the requisition for extradition.

A requisition for extradition cannot be founded on sentences passed in contumaciam.

ARTICLE VIII.

If the requisition for extradition be in accordance with the foregoing stipulations, the competent authorities of the State applied to shall proceed to the arrest of the fugitive.

The prisoner is then to be brought before a competent Magistrate, who is to examine him and to conduct the preliminary investigation of the case, according to the laws of the country in which he is found.

ARTICLE IX.

The extradition shall not take place before the expiration of fifteen days from the date of the fugitive criminal's committal to prison to await his surrender, and then only if the evidence produced in due time be found sufficient according to the laws of the State applied to.

ARTICLE X.

A fugitive criminal may, however, be apprehended under a warrant issued by any Police Magistrate, Justice of the Peace or other competent authority in either country, on such information or complaint, and such evidence, or after such proceedings as would, in the opinion of the person issuing the warrant, justify the issue of a warrant, if the crime had been committed or the prisoner convicted, in that part of the dominions of the two Contracting Parties in which he exercises jurisdiction: Provided however that, in the United Kingdom, the accused shall, in such cases, be sent as speedily as possible before a Police Magistrate in London. He shall be discharged, as well in the United Kingdom as in the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg, if within fourteen days a requisition shall not have been made for his surrender by the Diplomatic Agent of his country.

ait eu l'occasion de retourner au pays qui l'a extradé.

Le délai d'un mois sera considéré comme la limite du temps pendant lequel le prisonnier, afin de s'assurer les bienfaits de cet Article, peut retourner au pays dont il a été extradé.

Cette stipulation n'est pas applicable aux crimes commis après l'extradition.

ARTICLE VII.

L'extradition sera toujours demandée par la voi diplomatique, savoir: dans le Grand-Duché de Luxembourg, par l'Envoyé Britannique, et dans le Royaume-Uni au Secrétaire d'Etat pour les Affaires Etrangères, par le Ministre Etranger dans la Grande-Bretagne lequel sera à cette fin, reconnu par Sa Majesté la Reine comme le Représentant Diplomatique du Grand-Duché de Luxembourg.

La demande d'extradition d'un prévenue devra, être accompagnée d'un mandat d'arrêt décerne par l'autorité compétente du pays requérant et des preuves qui, d'aprés les lois de l'endroit où le prevenu a été trouvé justifieraint son arrestation, si l'acte punissable y avait été commis.

Si la demande d'extradition concerne une personne déjà condamnée, on doit produire l'arrêt de condamnation qui a été rendu par le Tribunal compétent de l'État requérant.

La demande d'extradition ne peut se baser sur des arrêts qui ont été rendus par contumace.

ARTICLE VIII.

Si la demande d'extradition est en accord avec les stipulations précédentes, les autorités compétentes de l'Etat auquel la demande d'extradition a été faite, procéderont á l'arrestation du fugitif.

Le prisonnier sera ensuite amené devant un magistrat compétent, qui devra l'examiner et conduire les investigations préliminaires d'après les lois du pays où il est trouvé.

ARTICLE IX.

L'extradition n'aura pas lieu avant l'expiration de quinze jours, à dater de l'arrestation du criminel fugitif attendant son extradition, et elle n'aura lieu que sur la production en temps utile de pièces trouvées suffisantes d'après les lois de l'Etat requis.

ARTICLE X.

Un malfaiteur fugitif peut néanmoins être arrêté dans les deux pays en vertu d'un mandat d'arrêt décerné par un magistrat ou fonctionnaire de police, par un Juge de Paix ou telle autre autorité compétente, sur une dénonciation ou plainte, et sur les preuves, ou d'après une procédure établissant que, dans l'opinion du fonctionnaire qui décerne le mandat d'arrêt cette mesure serait justifiée, si le crime avait été commis ou si le prisonier avait été condamné dans la partie des territoires des deux Parties Contractantes ou le fonctionnaire exerce la juridiction. Il est stipulé toutefois que, dans le Royaume-Uni, le prévenu devra, en pareil cas, être aussi promptement que possible conduit devant un magistrat de police à Londres. Il devra être mis en liberté dans le Royaume-Uni et dans le Grand-Duché de Luxembourg si, dans l'espace de quatorze jours, une demande d'extradition n'est pas faite par l'Agent Diplomatique de son pays.

ARTICLE XI.

If, in any criminal matter, pending in any Court or Tribunal of one of the two countries, it is thought desirable to take the evidence of any witness in the other, such evidence may be taken by the judicial authorities in accordance with the laws in force on this subject in the country where the witness may be.

ARTICLE XII.

All articles seized which were in the possession of the person to be surrendered at the time of his apprehension, shall, if the competent authority of the State applied to for the extradition has ordered the delivery thereof, be given up when the extradition takes place; and the said delivery shall extend not merely to the stolen articles, but to everything that may serve as a proof of the crime.

ARTICLE XIII.

The High Contracting Parties renounce any claim for the reimbursement of the expenses incurred by them in the arrest and maintenance of the person to be surrendered, and his conveyance till placed on board ship, as well as for the reimbursement of the expenses incurred in taking the evidence of any witness in consequence of Article XI; and in giving up and returning seized articles. They reciprocally agree to bear such expenses themselves.

ARTICLE XIV.

The stipulations of the present Treaty shall be applicable to the Colonies and foreign possessions of Her Britannic Majesty.

The requisition for the surrender of a fugitive criminal who has taken refuge in any of such Colonies or foreign possessions shall be made to the Governor or to the supreme authority of such Colony or possession through the Luxemburg Consul, or, in case there should be no Luxemburg Consul, through the Consular Agent of another State charged for the occasion with Luxemburg interests in the Colony or possession in question, and recognized by such Governor or supreme authority as such.

The Governor or supreme authority abovementioned shall decide with regard to such requisitions as nearly as possible in accordance with the provisions of the present Treaty. He will, however, be at liberty either to consent to the extradition or report the case to his Government.

Her Britannic Majesty shall, however, be at liberty to make special arrangements in the British Colonies and foreign possessions for the surrender of such individuals as shall have committed in the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg any of the crimes hereinafore mentioned, who may take refuge within such Colonies and foreign possessions, on the basis, as nearly as they may be, of the provisions of the present Treaty.

The requisition for the surrender of a fugitive criminal from any Colony or foreign possession of Her Britannic Majesty shall be governed by the rules laid down in the preceding Articles of the present Treaty.

ARTICLE XV.

The present Treaty shall come into force ten days after its publication in conformity with the forms prescribed by the laws of the High Contracting Parties. It may be terminated by either of the High Contracting Parties, but shall remain in force for six months after notice has been given for its termination.

ARTICLE XI.

Si, dans une matière criminelle pendante devant une Cour ou un Tribunal de l'un des deux pays, il est jugé désirable d'entendre dans l'autre les dépositions d'un témoin, pareilles dépositions peuvent être recues par les autorités judiciaires d'après les lois en vigueur sur la matière dans le pays où le témoin se trouve.

ARTICLE XII.

Les objets saisis en la possession de l'individu au moment de son arrestation seront, si l'autorité compétente de l'Etat requis en a ordonné la remise, livrés lorsque l'extradition aura lieu, et cette remise ne comprendra pas seulement les objets enlevés, mais encore tout ce qui peut servir de pièce à conviction.

ARTICLE XIII.

Les Hautes Parties Contractantes renoncent à toute réclamation pour le remboursement des frais qui leur ont été occasionnés par l'arrestation, l'entretien, et le transport de l'individu jusqu'au bord d'un navire, ainsi que de ceux occasionnés par la déposition d'un témoin, en conséquence de l'Article XI, et par la remise et la restitution des objets saisis. Elles consentent à supporter réciproquement les dits frais.

ARTICLE XIV.

Les stipulations du présent Traité seront appliables aux Colonies et possessions étrangères de Sa Majesté Britannique.

La demande d'extradition d'un criminel qui s'est réfugié dans une de ces Colonies ou Possessions étrangères, sera faite au Gouverneur ou à l'autorité suprême de cette Colonie ou Possession par le Consul Luxembourgeois, ou, à défaut d'un Consul Luxembourgeois, par l'Agent Consulaire d'un autre Etat chargé pour l'occasion des intérêts Luxembourgeois dans la Colonie ou Possession en question, et reconnu comme tel par le Gouverneur ou l'autorité suprême.

Le Gouverneur, ou l'autorité suprême, mentionné ci-dessus, décidera à l'égard de telles demandes, en se conformant autant que possible aux dispositions du présent Traité. Il sera néanmoins libre d'accorder l'extradition ou de soumettre le cas à son Gouvernement.

Sa Majesté Britannique se réserve cependant le droit de faire, en se conformant autant que possible aux stipulations du présent Traité, des arrangements spéciaux dans les Colonies ou Possessions étrangères pour l'extradition d'individus qui ont commis dans le Grand-Duché de Luxembourg un des crimes prévus dans le Traité, et qui auraient trouvé un réfuge dans ces Colonies ou Possessions étrangères.

Les demandes concernant l'extradition de criminels qui se sont échappés d'une des Colonies ou Possessions étrangères de Sa Majesté Britannique seront traitées suivant les dispositions des Articles précédents du présent Traité.

ARTICLE XV.

Le présent Traité entrera en vigueur dix jours après sa publication dans les formes prescrites par la législation des Hautes Parties Contractantes. Le Traité peut être dénoncé par chacune des Parties Contractantes; il demeurera toutefois en vigueur encore six mois après qu'il aura été dénoncé.

The Treaty shall be ratified, and the ratifications shall be exchanged at Brussels as soon as possible.

The executor assents to the bequest on condition that B shall within a limited time pay the amount due on the mortgage at the testator's death. The amount is not paid. There is no assent.

(b). The executor assents to a bequest on condition that the legatee shall pay him a sum of money. The payment is not made. The assent is nevertheless valid.

115. When the executor is a legatee, his assent to his own legacy is necessary to complete his title to it, in the same way as it is required when the bequest is to another person and his assent may in like manner be express or implied.

Assent of executor to his own legacy.

Assent shall be implied if in his manner of administering the property he does any act which is referable to his character of legatee and is not referable to his character of executor.

Implied assent.

Illustration.

An executor takes the rent of a house or the interest of Government-securities bequeathed to him, and applies it to his own use. This is assent.

116. The assent of the executor to a legacy gives effect to it from the death of the testator.

Effect of executor's assent.

Illustrations.

(a). A legatee sells his legacy before it is assented to by the executor. The executor's subsequent assent operates for the benefit of the purchaser, and completes his title to the legacy.

(b). A bequeaths 1,000 rupees to B with interest from his death. The executor does not assent to this legacy until the expiration of a year from A's death. B is entitled to interest from the death of A.

117. An executor is not bound to pay or deliver any legacy until the expiration of one year from the testator's death.

Executor when to deliver legacies.

Illustration.

A by his will directs his legacies to be paid within six months after his death. The executor is not bound to pay them before the expiration of a year.

CHAPTER IX.

OF THE PAYMENT AND APPORTIONMENT OF ANNUITIES.

118. Where an annuity is given by the will, and no time is fixed for its commencement, it shall commence from the testator's death, and the first payment shall be made at the expiration of a year next after that event.

Commencement of annuity when no time fixed by will.

119. Where there is a direction that the annuity shall be paid quarterly or monthly, the first payment shall be due at the end of the first quarter or first month, as the case may be, after the testator's death, and shall, if the executor think fit, be paid when due; but the executor shall not be bound to pay it till the end of the year.

When annuity, to be paid quarterly or monthly, first falls due.

120. Where there is a direction that the first payment of an annuity shall be made within one month, or any other division of time from the death of the testator, or on a day certain, the successive payments are to be made on the anniversary of the earliest day on which the will authorizes the first payment to be made;

Date of successive payments when first payment directed to be made within given time, or on day certain.

and if the annuitant dies in the interval between the times of payment, an apportioned share of the annuity shall be paid to his representative.

Apportionment where annuitant dies between times of payment.

CHAPTER X.

OF THE INVESTMENT OF FUNDS TO PROVIDE FOR LEGACIES.

Investment of sum bequeathed where legacy, not specific, given for life.

121. Where a legacy, not being a specific legacy, is given for life, the sum bequeathed shall at the end of the year be invested in such securities as the High Court may, by any general rule to be made from time to time, authorize or direct, and the proceeds thereof shall be paid to the legatee as the same shall accrue due.

Investment of general legacy, to be paid at future time.

122. Where a general legacy is given to be paid at a future time, the executor shall invest a sum sufficient to meet it in securities of the kind mentioned in the last preceding section.

Intermediate interest.

The intermediate interest shall form part of the residue of the testator's estate.

Procedure when no fund charged with, or appropriated to, annuity.

123. Where an annuity is given and no fund is charged with its payment or appropriated by the will to answer it, a Government annuity of the specified amount shall be purchased, or, if no such annuity can be obtained, then a sum sufficient to produce the annuity shall be invested for that purpose in such securities as the High Court may, by any general rule to be made from time to time, authorize or direct.

Transfer to residuary legatee or contingent bequest.

124. Where a bequest is contingent, the executor is not bound to invest the amount of the legacy, but may transfer the whole residue of the estate to the residuary legatee (if any) on his giving sufficient security for the payment of the legacy if it shall become due.

Investment of residue bequeathed for life, with direction to invest in specified securities.

125. Where the testator has bequeathed the residue of his estate to a person for life with a direction that it shall be invested in certain specified securities, so much of the estate as is not at the time of his death invested in securities of the specified kind shall be converted into money and invested in such securities.

Time and manner of conversion and investment.

126. Such conversion and investment as are contemplated by the last preceding section shall be made at such times and in such manner as the executor in his discretion thinks fit;

Interest payable until investment.

and, until such conversion and investment shall be completed, the person who would be for the time being entitled to the income of the fund when so invested shall receive interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum upon the market value (to be computed as of the date of the testator's death) of such part of the fund as shall not yet have been so invested.

Procedure where minor entitled to immediate payment or possession of bequest, and no direction to pay to person on his behalf.

127. Where, by the terms of a bequest, the legatee is entitled to the immediate payment or possession of the money or thing bequeathed, but is a minor, and there is no direction in the will to pay it to any person on his behalf the executor or administrator shall pay or deliver the same into the Court of the District Judge by whom, or by whose District Delegate, the probate was, or letters of administration with the will annexed were, granted, to the account of the legatee, unless the legatee be a ward of the Court of Wards; and, if the legatee be a ward of the Court of Wards, the legacy shall be paid into that Court to his account; and such payment into the Court of the District Judge, or into the Court of Wards, as the case may be, shall be a sufficient discharge for the money so paid; and such money, when paid in, shall be invested in the purchase of Government securities, which, with the interest thereon, shall be transferred or paid to the person entitled thereto, or otherwise applied for his benefit, as the Judge or the Court of Wards, as the case may be, may direct.

CHAPTER XI.

OF THE PRODUCE AND INTEREST OF LEGACIES.

Legatee's title to produce of specific legacy.

128 The legatee of a specific legacy is entitled to the clear produce thereof, if any, from the testator's death.

Exception.—A specific bequest, contingent in its terms, does not comprise the produce of the legacy between the death of the testator and the vesting of the legacy.

The clear produce of it forms part of the residue of the testator's estate.

Illustrations.

(a). A bequeaths his flock of sheep to B. Between the death of A and delivery by his executor the sheep are shorn, or some of the ewes produce lambs. The wool and lambs are the property of B.

(b). A bequeaths his Government securities to B, but postpones the delivery of them till the death of C. The interest which falls due between the death of A and the death of C belongs to B, and must, unless he is a minor, be paid to him as it is received.

(c). The testator bequeaths all his four per cent. Government promissory notes to A when he shall complete the age of 18. A, if he complete that age, is entitled to receive the notes, but the interest which accrues in respect of them, between the testator's death and A's completing 18 forms part of the residue.

Residuary legatee's title to produce of residuary fund.

129. The legatee under a general residuary bequest is entitled to the produce of the residuary fund from the testator's death.

Exception.—A general residuary bequest contingent in its terms does not comprise the income which may accrue upon the fund bequeathed between the death of the testator and the vesting of the legacy.

Such income goes as undisposed of.

Illustrations.

(a). The testator bequeaths the residue of his property to A, a minor, to be paid to him when he shall complete the age of 18. The income from the testator's death belongs to A.

(b). The testator bequeaths the residue of his property to A when he shall complete the age of 18. A, if he complete that age, is entitled to receive the residue. The income which has accrued in respect of it since the testator's death goes as undisposed of.

Interest when no time fixed for payment of general legacy.

130. Where no time has been fixed for the payment of a general legacy, interest begins to run from the expiration of one year from the testator's death.

Exceptions.—(1). Where the legacy is bequeathed in satisfaction of a debt, interest runs from the death of the testator.

(2). Where the testator was a parent or a more remote ancestor of the legatee, or has put himself in the place of a parent of the legatee, the legacy shall bear interest from the death of the testator

(3). Where a sum is bequeathed to a minor with a direction to pay for his maintenance out of it, interest is payable from the death of the testator.

Interest when time fixed.

131. Where a time has been fixed for the payment of a general legacy, interest begins to run from the time so fixed.

The interest up to such time forms part of the residue of the testator's estate.

Exception.—Where the testator was a parent or a more remote ancestor of the legatee, or has put himself in the place of a parent of the legatee, and the legatee is a minor, the legacy shall bear interest from the death of the testator, unless a specific sum is given by the will for maintenance, or unless the will contains a direction to the contrary.

Rate of interest.

132. The rate of interest shall be six per cent. per annum.

No interest on arrears of annuity within first year after testator's death.

133 No interest is payable on the arrears of an annuity within the first year from the death of the testator, although a period earlier than the expiration of that year may have been fixed by the will for making the first payment of the annuity.

Interest on sum to be invested to produce annuity.

134. Where a sum of money is directed to be invested to produce an annuity, interest is payable on it from the death of the testator.

CHAPTER XII.

OF THE REFUNDING OF LEGACIES.

Refund of legacy paid under Judge's orders.

135. An executor who has paid a legacy under the order of a Judge, is entitled to call upon the legatee to refund in the event of the assets proving insufficient to pay all the legacies.

No refund if paid voluntarily.

136. When an executor has voluntarily paid a legacy, he cannot call upon a legatee to refund in the event of the assets proving insufficient to pay all the legacies.

Refund when legacy becomes due on performance of condition within further time allowed.

137. When the time prescribed by the will for the performance of a condition has elapsed, without the condition having been performed, and the executor has thereupon, without fraud, distributed the assets; in such case, if further time has, under the second clause of this section, been allowed for the performance of the condition, and the condition has been performed accordingly, the legacy cannot be claimed from the executor, but those to whom he has paid it are liable to refund the amount.

Where the will requires an act to be performed by the legatee within a specified time, either as a condition to be fulfilled before the legacy is enjoyed, or as a condition upon the non-fulfilment of which the subject-matter of the bequest is to go over to another person, or the bequest is to cease to have effect, the act must be performed within the time specified, unless the performance of it be prevented by fraud, in which case such further time shall be allowed as is requisite to make up for the delay caused by such fraud.

When each legatee compellable to refund in proportion.

138. When the executor has paid away the assets in legacies, and he is afterwards obliged to discharge a debt of which he had no previous notice, he is entitled to call upon each legatee to refund in proportion.

Distribution of assets.

139. Where an executor or administrator has given such notices as the High Court may, by any general rule to be made from time to time, prescribe, for creditors and others to send in to him their claims against the estate of the deceased, he shall, at the expiration of the time therein named for sending in claims, be at liberty to distribute the assets, or any part thereof, in discharge of such lawful claims as he knows of and shall not be liable for the assets so distributed to any person of whose claim he has not had notice at the time of such distribution.

But nothing herein contained shall prejudice the right of any creditor or claimant to follow the assets or any part thereof, in the hands of the persons who may have received the same respectively.

Creditor may follow assets.

Creditor may call upon legatee to refund.

140. A creditor who has not received payment of his debt may call upon a legatee who has received payment of his legacy to refund, whether the assets of the testator's estate were or were not sufficient at the time of his death to pay both debts and legacies, and whether the payment of the legacy by the executor was voluntary or not.

When legatee, not satisfied or compelled to refund under section 140, cannot oblige one paid in full to refund.

141. If the assets were sufficient to satisfy all the legacies at the time of the testator's death, a legatee who has not received payment of his legacy, or who has been compelled to refund under the last preceding section cannot oblige one who has received payment in full to refund, whether the legacy were paid to him with or without suit, although the assets have subsequently become deficient by the wasting of the executor.

When unsatisfied, legatee must first proceed against executor, if solvent.

142. If the assets were not sufficient to satisfy all the legacies at the time of the testator's death, a legatee who has not received payment of his legacy must, before he can call on a satisfied legatee to refund, first proceed against the executor if he is solvent; but, if the executor is insolvent or not liable to pay, the unsatisfied legatee can oblige each satisfied legatee to refund in proportion.

Limit to refunding of one legatee to another.

143. The refunding of one legatee to another shall not exceed the sum by which the satisfied legacy ought to have been reduced if the estate had been properly administered.

Illustration.

A has bequeathed 240 rupees to B, 480 rupees to C, and 720 rupees to D. The assets are only 1,200 rupees, and if properly administered would give 200 rupees to B, 400 rupees to C, and 600 rupees to D. C and D have been paid their legacies in full, leaving nothing to B. B can oblige C to refund 80 rupees, and D to refund 120 rupees.

Refunding to be without interest.

144. The refunding shall in all cases be without interest.

Residue after usual payments to be paid to residuary legatee.

145. The surplus or residue of the deceased's property, after payment of debts and legacies, shall be paid to the residuary legatee when any has been appointed by the will.

CHAPTER XIII.

OF THE LIABILITY OF AN EXECUTOR OR ADMINISTRATOR FOR DEVASTATION.

Liability of executor or administrator for devastation.

146. When an executor or administrator misapplies the estate of the deceased, or subjects it to loss or damage, he is liable to make good the loss or damage so occasioned.

Illustrations.

(a). The executor pays out of the estate an unfounded claim. He is liable to make good the loss caused by the payment.

(b). The deceased had a valuable lease renewable by notice, which the executor neglects to give at the proper time. The executor is liable to make good the loss caused by the neglect.

(c). The deceased had a lease of less value than the rent payable for it, but terminable on notice at a particular time. The executor neglects to give the notice, he is liable to make good the loss.

For neglect to get in any part of property.

147. When an executor or administrator occasions a loss to the estate by neglecting to get in any part of the property of the deceased, he is liable to make good the amount.

Illustrations.

(a). The executor absolutely releases a debt due to the deceased from a solvent person, or compounds with a debtor who is able to pay in full. The executor is liable to make good the amount so lost.

(b). The executor neglects to sue for a debt till the debtor is able to plead the Act for the limitation of suits and the debt is thereby lost to the estate. The executor is liable to make good the amount of the debt.

FORMATION OF A TRAINING CLASS FOR EUROPEAN AND EURASIAN NURSES.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT—EDUCATION.

Calcutta, the 13th April 1881.

RESOLUTION.

READ the following papers:—

A letter, dated the 4th October 1880, from Surgeon-Major T. E. Charles, M.D, proposing the formation, in the Calcutta Medical College, of a class for the training of European and Eurasian women as midwives.

A letter No. 4176, dated the 27th November 1880, from the Surgeon-General, Bengal, expressing his opinion on the proposal.

A letter No. 2130, dated the 24th March 1881, from the Director of Public Instruction, submitting the opinion of the Medical College Council on the proposal.

IN his letter quoted in the preamble of this Resolution, Dr. Charles submitted a scheme for training European and Eurasian women in midwifery, and suggested that a class should be opened for this purpose in the Calcutta Medical College, consisting of not more than six women, to each of whom an allowance of Rs. 15 per month should for the present be given.

2. The Lieutenant-Governor, after consultation with the Surgeon-General, Bengal, and the Medical College Council, sanctions the formation of the class on the terms proposed. The scheme, if successful, will result in an increased supply of trained nurses in Bengal, and mitigate the existing difficulty in obtaining competent midwives at moderate charges in the mofussil. It is believed that there will be full occupation forthcoming for a considerable number of nurses, if they are willing to settle in the large mofussil stations, charge moderate fees, and visit the smaller stations when their services are required.

3. Of the first six nominations to the class, the Lieutenant-Governor desires to retain four for civil nurses. The remaining two will be placed at the disposal of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, who will be asked to give the preference to women from regiments serving in Bengal. On the occurrence of future vacancies, Sir Ashley Eden will endeavour to arrange that the same proportion shall be maintained between military and civil nurses.

4. In order that the fittest selections may be made to fill the vacancies reserved for civil nurses, the College Council should choose the steadiest women from the list of applicants; and with a view to supplying the necessities of the mofussil, which are at present more pressing than those of Calcutta, a preference should, so far as is consistent with obtaining fit candidates, be given to women from the mofussil. The Civil Surgeons of Patna, Dacca, Darjeeling, Moorshedabad, Cuttack, Purulia, Hazaribagh, Hooghly, and Burdwan, should endeavour to find suitable candidates, and should submit their names for approval to the Principal of the Calcutta Medical College, with a certificate from the Magistrate of the district as to the respectability of the applicants.

5. At the conclusion of their training, certificates of competency signed by the Professor of Midwifery will be given to such of the nurses as he may consider qualified to exercise their calling.

A. MACKENZIE,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the barograph and thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the barograph and thermograph.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

C. TAYLOR,
Asst. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.
in the P. W. Dept., Irrigation Branch.

Remarks on Traffic of the East Indian Railway for four weeks ending 26th February 1881.

THE approximate figures for the period are as follow :—

	Coaching.		Goods.		Total.	Materials carried on revenue account, including maintenance.
	Mds.	Rs.	Mds.	Rs.	Rs.	Mds.	Rs.
1881	6,96,856	10,48,343	61,44,722	24,39,537	34,87,879	15,30,790	1,00,166
1880	6,72,924	9,91,267	61,33,243	26,42,093	36,33,359	17,04,030	1,18,852
Increase	23,932	57,075	11,480	.....	.....	.....	.....
Decrease	...	.....	.....	2,02,556	1,45,480	1,73,240	18,686

The result shows a falling off in receipts from all traffic of 4 per cent.

In goods traffic the most striking feature is the falling off in the cotton traffic which has resulted in a loss of nearly two lakhs of rupees. In staples generally the principal fluctuations are given below :—

INCREASES.

	Weight.	Earnings.
	Mds.	Rs.
Coal, upwards	55,880	19,740
Rice	1,51,500	1,05,860
Wheat	99,130	19,780
Pulses	33,170	9,110
Gunny	10,400	6,100
Iron	8,370	10,340
Jaggree	2,34,670	52,280
Minerals	33,170	3,960
Opium	29,490	26,250
Seeds	47,510	3,000
Sugar	14,350	4,110
Total ...	.....	2,60,530

DECREASES.

Coal, downwards	1,75,600	27,330
Cotton	1,06,540	1,84,540
Ghee and oil	6,030	11,590
Government stores	12,580	21,360
Other grains	31,340	11,240
Hides	49,410	35,350
Railway materials	36,400	55,040
Salt	1,90,390	48,880
Total ...	.....	3,95,330

Coal, up.—This increase is due to the supplies of coal to Foreign Railway Companies being larger this year.

Rice.—For the reasons given in my last report, the direction of the rice traffic has been chiefly upwards.

Wheat.—The traffic has been entirely local, and will account for the greater weight carried as compared with the increase in earnings, the proportion of increase being—

Weight 61 per cent.
Earnings 31 per cent.

Pulses.—The absence of any great demand tends to keep this traffic within its normal bounds and to confine it to localities

Gunny.—This appears to be a mere fluctuation ; the figures are not so good as for last month.

Iron.—Favorable market rates in Calcutta appear to have induced buyers from Cawnpore and Delhi to purchase.

Jaggree.—An unusually large demand for jaggree has sprung up in Rajputana and the Punjab.

Minerals.—Chiefly kunker (road metal) carried to Burdwan for municipal roads from stations near at hand.

Opium.—Government demands in Calcutta. Supplies from Patna.

Seeds.—The seed traffic to Calcutta has been obtained from stations comparatively nearer the port this year.

Sugar.—Following the same lead as "jaggree," the increase in sugar is from stations on the Oudh and Rohilkund vid Allyghur to Rajpootana vid Agra and to Hattrass Road.

DECREASES.

Coal, down.—The reports from Calcutta show that business in Indian coal is still very dull and prospects discouraging

Cotton—Has declined in price since the commencement of the year, and the advices from home are reported unfavorable.

Ghee and Oil.—This traffic was unusually large last year, while at present it is normal.

Government stores—Have fallen off owing to cessation of frontier operations.

Other grains—Show a decline of 11 per cent. in weight and nearly 18 per cent. in receipts.

Hides.—The falling off here is attributed to the very small imports of hides into Calcutta.

Railway materials, foreign.—This decrease is at Howrah, whence a quantity of permanent-way materials was carried to Kundwah in the G. I. P. Railway for the Neemuch State Railway last year. Rolling-stock also for the Rajputana State Railway was then being sent up.

Salt.—The salt trade from the Sambhur Lakes vid Agra has fallen off considerably of late.

The train-mileage for the period has been, excluding maintenance and locomotive coal train-mileage,—

	Coaching.	Goods	Total.
1881	192,262	432,457	624,719
1880	198,444	446,875	645,319
Increase	.. .	.....	...
Decrease	1,182	14,418	15,600

Earnings per train-mile, excluding material carried on Maintenance and Revenue Account—

	Coaching.	Goods.	Total.
	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.
1881	5 7 3	5 10 3	5 9 4
1880	5 2 0	5 14 7	5 10 9
Increase	0 5 3	.....	.....
Decrease	.....	0 4 4	0 1 5

The decrease in the receipts per train-mile of goods traffic is doubtless attributable to the falling off in cotton, and to the short distance traffic viâ Allyghur to Rajputana and the Punjab.

Shunting Mileage.—Increase hours 565, owing to the employment of shunting engines at Patna, Dinapore, and Mogulserai to facilitate traffic.

Jamalpore, the 1*st April* 1881.

N. St. L. Carter, Traffic Manager.

Report on the Fluctuations in Traffic on the Northern Bengal State Railway for the month of March 1881.

GENERAL REMARKS.

In comparing the total weight of jute carried during the latter half of 1879 with that of the last half of 1880, it will be observed that there is a falling off of no less than 87,684 maunds. There has, however, been a steady increase since January 1881 to date, and before new jute comes into the market, it is surmised that a greater weight will have passed over the line for the season 1880-81 than did in 1879-80.

Increases.

Ale ... ... Mds. 298

A renewal of the Commissariat despatches for the Convalescent Depôt at Darjeeling accounts for this increase.

Gunny-bags ... ... Mds. 2,443

The traffic in this staple still continues to show favorable comparison with the corresponding period of last year, and will no doubt continue to do so while the raw material remains at its present low price.

Jute ... ... Mds. 19,592

The short despatches during the latter end of 1880 will, in all probability, be compensated for by larger quantities being sent forward now.

Piece-goods ... ... Mds. 477

A reference to previous reports will show that there has been a slight falling off under this head for some months past. Stocks have been allowed to run low and a revival may now be looked for.

Salt ... ... Mds. 2,107

The check given to the traffic in this staple by the late rise in price will probably result in a corresponding increase for the next few months.

Sugar ... ... Mds. 440

This increase is probably due to the stimulus given by the favorable rates now ruling.

Tea ... ... Mds. 196

The earlier manufacture in the Doars this year will account for the extra weight carried this month, as compared with the same month last year.

All other goods ... ... Mds. 27,113

The upwards traffic in the numerous commodities carried under this head still continues very brisk, and the present available rolling stock of the Tramway is being taxed beyond its power in the endeavour to keep pace with the deliveries at Siliguri.

Decreases.

Food-grain ... ... Mds. 7,444

The demand for shipment has fallen of and prices, low as they are, have further declined leaving no margin for profit between the price on the spot and at the Port.

Ginger ... ... Mds. 424

The slight spurt in this staple appears to have died out.

Railway material ... ... Mds. 2,360

[illegible]ng off is accounted for by the completion of the Kaunia and Dhubri Tramway.

Tobacco ... ... Mds. 3,169

[illegible]he fag end of the season, and no improvement can be looked for until the new crop comes forward.

Increase.

Firewood ... ... Mds. 387

The increase is due to larger imports at Basra ghât.

Rice ... ... Mds. 17,667

The increase is due to the regular working of the rice-mills.

Building materials ... ... Mds. 464

The increase is due to the Sonapore-Mugra extension.

Coal ... ... Mds. 2,696

The increase is due to greater demands at the rice-mills.

Gunny-bags ... ... Mds. 1,331

The increase is due to greater demands at the rice-mills.

Revenue stores ... ... Mds. 1,365

The increase in revenue stores is due to those stores being invoiced and charged for this year in accordance with recent orders

Railway materials ... ... Mds. 8,813

The increase is due to the Sonapore-Mugra extension.

Decrease.

Hay ... ... Mds. 955

The price of hay being too low at selling stations, merchants are waiting for favourable market, and they have stacked it for the present.

Wooloo ... ... Mds. 1,780

The use of wooloo being against municipal ruling, there is no demand at selling stations.

Straw ... ... Mds. 540

The produce of straw being abundant all over Bengal, the demand at selling stations is comparatively less.

Paddy ... ... Mds. 555

The decrease is due to the same cause which affected the straw traffic.

Increase.

Piece-goods ... ... Mds. 233

The increase is due to greater quantity having been imported by merchants in anticipation of increase in demand.

Cotton ... ... Mds. 967

The increase is due to the greater import at Azimgunge, the stock being exhausted.

Seeds of all sorts ... ... Mds. 8,896

There not being sufficient water in the river this year, the merchants are bringing mustard-seed by rail instead of by boat; hence the increase.

Sundries ... ... Mds. 4,151

The increase under this head is due to some of the staples carried in small quantities having been included in this.

Decrease.

Edible grain ... ... Mds. 391

An abundant harvest in all parts of Bengal has checked the movement of this commodity.

Brass and bell metal ware ... ... Mds. 272

The less demand for this staple from Khagra to Calcutta has caused the decrease.

Coal ... ... Mds. 4,724

The decrease is due to less brick-burning this year than in the previous year. Last year's stock not yet exhausted sufficiently

Gold, silver, and bronze medals, and certificates of honourable mention, will be awarded by Committees of Jurors specially appointed for the purpose.

Notices should be sent by intending Exhibitors, describing the nature, and the number of the articles they propose to exhibit, and the space required for them. Such notices and applications for space should be addressed to the Secretary, Economic Museum, 12, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and should reach him as soon after the 31st July as possible, and not later than the 15th September, as, after the latter date, it may not be possible for the Committee to guarantee any required space.

The articles for Exhibition should reach Calcutta as soon after the 30th September as possible. The 1st November will be the latest date on which articles can be received, except in any special case which may have been previously settled between the Exhibitor and the Committee.

Exhibitors are particularly requested to state whether the articles they send are for sale, and to attach to each article, that may be for sale, its price, and the name and address of maker and of Exhibitor. The Committee should also be informed as to whether orders for the supply of duplicates of any articles can be executed.

Only one specimen of each kind of article sent by any Exhibitor will be placed in the Exhibition, but arrangements will be made for the establishment of a separate agency for the reception and sale of duplicates.

Unless accompanied by a statement to the contrary, all articles will be considered to be for sale, either at the prices marked thereon or to the highest bidder at a public auction to be held at the close of the Exhibition.

It must be distinctly understood that, having regard to the space allotted for the Exhibition and the character and quality of the articles exhibited, the Committee reserve to themselves the right of rejecting any article.

The Exhibition will be open for about one month. On its close the unsold contributions will be disposed of by public auction, and the sums realized will be remitted to the owners, or the articles will be returned to them according to the way in which they may have declared their option.

The cost of carriage of all articles sent for exhibition must either be prepaid or it must be distinctly understood that if sent "bearing" the amount of any carriage charges which may be paid by this Committee will be deducted from any sale proceeds. In no case will this Committee bear the cost of any carriage charges on account of articles which are not for sale.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

H. T. PRINSEP,
Chairman of the Committee.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT ON THE CALCUTTA COURT OF SMALL CAUSES FOR THE YEAR 1880.

JUDICIAL.

Dated Darjeeling, the 27th April 1881.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

The Report on the Calcutta Court of Small Causes for the year 1880

This is the second report which has been prepared for the calendar, instead of for the official, year. The present report differs from that for the year 1879 in the nature and form of the judicial returns appended to it, which have been altered at the request of the High Court, in order to admit of the incorporation of the information contained in the Small Cause Court Report with the Report of the High Court on the administration of Civil Justice. In consequence of the change in the form of the returns, the figures for 1879 and 1880 do not in all instances admit of comparison.

2. There was a considerable decrease in the number of suits instituted during the year, as compared with the figures for 1878-79 and for 1879, as shown below :—

1878-79.	1879.	1880.
37,681	37,199	35,304

There was an increase of 37 in the number of suits between Rs. 500 and Rs. 1,000 in value, while the decrease in the number of suits of other values amounted to 1,932, the net decrease being 1,895. The principal decrease was in suits not exceeding Rs. 10 and in those between Rs. 10 and Rs 50 in value, the falling off in these two classes being 1,027 and 643 respectively. The Judges remark that, although the decrease was large, yet the number of suits instituted during the year was much above the average, the two previous years having been extraordinarily heavy, the number of suits instituted, during the year 1878-79, viz. 37,681, being the largest on record. The decrease was general, and the Judges remark, "We do not look upon the difference as anything more than an ordinary fluctuation, for we are unable to attribute it to any particular phase of litigation" The total value of the suits instituted during the year was Rs. 17,70,036, as against Rs. 18,19,614, the amount in litigation in 1879.

3. Including 1,584 cases pending from the previous year, the total number of cases set down for hearing in 1880 was 36,888, of which 35,600 were disposed of during the year, and 1,288 were pending at its close. As in 1879, by far the largest class of suits consisted of claims for goods sold, the number of which amounted to 13,814, against 15,471 decided during that year, and 15,410 decided in 1878-79. The next largest class was that of suits on contract in writing, the number being 4,795. Suits for wages, work, and materials amounted to 4,709 in number, against 4,825 in 1879. The suits on contract not in writing amounted to 3,976, and those for rent not falling under the Rent Law to 3,727. The suits under the Rent Law amounted to 262, 6 of these relating to distraint and 256 being for ejectment or recovery of possession. Of suits "on account stated," there were 782; of suits for damages, 1,249; of suits relating to shipping, 84; of interpleader suits, 366; and of suits not separately distinguished, 1,836. There was a decrease of Rs. 11,336 in the amount of the distraints under the Distress Act of 1875, the number of distraints being 102 against 353 in 1879; the Judges consider this to be a good sign, as showing that landlords have not been obliged to have recourse to the more violent remedy allowed by the law, for the purpose of obtaining their rent.

4. The following statement shows the result of the suits of the past three years:—

How disposed of	1878-79.	1879.	1880.
For plaintiffs after trial	8,841	8,175	5,441
Ditto ex-parte	8,109	8,463	10,266
Compromised	13,700	13,534	13,062
Nonsuited	2,096	2,317	2,444
Dismissed after trial	1,423	1,338	1,304
Ditto in default of plaintiff	3,358	3,224	3,083
Against plaintiff,	6,877	6,879	6,831
Total ...	37,527	37,051	35,600

The figures show that the results were slightly less favourable to plaintiffs than those of the two preceding years, the percentages of the cases in which the result was in favour of plaintiffs being as follow:—

1878-79	81·6
1879	81·4
1880	80 8

5. With reference to the proposed extension of the jurisdiction of the Court, the Judges point out that a larger building will, if effect be given to the proposal, be required for the purpose of carrying on the additional work which will be thrown upon the Court. The consideration of this question can well be postponed until after the Presidency Small Cause Courts Bill, which is now before the Government of India, has been passed.

6. The receipts during the year amounted to Rs. 2,36,439, and the expenditure to Rs. 1,64,533, leaving a net sum of Rs. 71,906 to be credited to the General Revenues, as compared with Rs. 73,619 in 1879, and Rs. 81,106 in 1878-79. It is observed, however, that in paragraph 7 of their report to the High Court, the Judges state that Rs. 71,908 is the amount which was credited to the Court after deducting all charges and expenses.

Order.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be communicated to the Judges of the Calcutta Court of Small Causes.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

HORACE A. COCKERELL,
Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

Read—

A letter No. 156A, dated the 19th March 1881, from Mr. H. J. S. Cotton, late Officiating Secretary to the Board of Revenue, submitting the conclusions of the Committee.

The question of reducing the Subordinate Executive Service and establishments in Bengal, and of increasing their efficiency, has for some time past been under the consideration of the Lieutenant-Governor. In February 1879, the Board of Revenue was called upon to submit proposals to this end; and the conclusions arrived at by the Board, in consultation with local officers, were reported to Government in their Officiating Secretary's letter dated the 16th July 1880. A perusal of this report led the Lieutenant-Governor to believe that the matter was one which could be more thoroughly and satisfactorily investigated by a small body of selected officers, and the gentlemen named on the margin were accordingly requested to form a Committee for this purpose. The report of this Committee was submitted on the 19th March, and the Lieutenant-Governor has, with one slight modification, accepted the suggestions contained in it.

Mr. H. L. Dampier.
Mr. H A. Cockerell.
Mr. H. J. Reynolds.
Mr A. Mackenzie.
Mr. H. J. S. Cotton.

2. The report is divided into the following heads:—

I.—The question of the organization of the lower grades of the Subordinate Executive Service upon a divisional basis.

II.—The class of work upon which members of the lower grades of the Subordinate Executive Service should be employed, and the retention of Canoongoes as a separate grade in the service.

III.—The rules under which travelling allowance, if any, should be granted to Sub-Deputy Collectors and Canoongoes.

IV.—The general result of the scheme now proposed, both financially and in regard to the numerical strength of the establishments employed.

V.—The apportionment of the establishment of chainmen and messengers required.

3. The Lieutenant-Governor accepts the proposal of the Board, which is endorsed by the Committee, that the distribution of the Subordinate Executive Service and establishments should in future be based on a divisional instead of a district arrangement. This formed a part of the scheme as originally planned by Sir George Campbell in his Resolution of the 22nd April 1873, but it has to a great extent been lost sight of in practice. By degrees a fixed proportion of Subordinate Executive Officers and of their establishments has come to be regarded as part of the permanent staff of districts and sub-divisions, although, as remarked by the Committee, "while Sub-Deputies and Canoongoes are distributed on a symmetrical system among the districts and sub-divisions of Bengal, the special work on which they ought to be employed is distributed according to no such principle, and they cannot therefore all be posted in the manner which would be most advantageous for disposing of that work." In other words, the present distribution is in accordance with the local requirements of 1873, not with those of the present day. For the future, a separate list will be constituted for each division, and the distribution within the division will be left to the discretion of the Divisional Commissioners, who will be guided in allotting the establishments by the requirements of districts, as these may vary from time to time. For purposes of gradation and promotion, one general list will, however, as at present, be kept up for the province as a whole.

4. As regards the class of work on which Sub-Deputy Collectors and Canoongoes should be employed, there is again much reason to believe that the rules laid down by this Government in 1873 have too frequently been disregarded. These still, however, sufficiently clearly describe the duties which it is intended that those officers should undertake. In paragraph 4 of Sir George Campbell's Resolution it was stated that under the scheme the—

"Sub-divisional establishments might be expected to do certain work hitherto done by temporary establishments which, on the average of past years, had cost the Imperial Government close upon one lakh of rupees a year. The special or occasional duties which the new staff would render it possible for the local officers to undertake without special assistance were—

"Duties in connection with the ordinary administration hitherto occasionally performed by Supernumerary Deputy Collectors;

"Duties hitherto performed at sub-divisions by additional Deputy Magistrates and Collectors, of whom there are now three;

"Settlements not exceeding 2,000 acres in any one district in any one year;

"Management of Government estates yielding not more than Rs. 1,000 per annum;

"Taking up land for public purposes, not exceeding 20 acres in extent."

In paragraphs 8, 9, and 16 it was added—

"8. The Lieutenant-Governor desires that very particular care be taken by Commissioners, Magistrate-Collectors, and Sub-Divisional Officers that the new establishments are not employed as mere clerks to work in offices, but as executive agents to help the District and Sub-Divisional Officers in administering the various departments under their charge. They are to be employed actively for executive, statistical, and (where magisterial powers are given) judicial work. The Magistrate-Collectors will give such instructions as may be necessary in regard to the accommodation of the new class of officers in Sub-Divisional cutcherries during the hours they may be employed at head-quarters. The question of putting them in occasional charge of Sub-Divisional treasuries or other departments may also be considered.

"9. The Lieutenant-Governor especially trusts that the various calls for statistical enquiries which have been made, and have yet to be complied with, will now receive very special and particular attention. Before action must come knowledge; and the Lieutenant-Governor considers that the first and most important duty of the District and Sub-Divisional Officers under the system now inaugurated, is to put the Government in possession of information of a practical and useful character regarding the people, the productions, and the resources of their respective charges. He believes that the Sub-Divisional establishments may now be rendered really effective for executive as well as for judicial purposes."

* * * * * * * *

"16. His Honor proposes to invest with third-class magisterial powers those officers whose examination seems to show a competent knowledge, and he will be prepared so to invest any other Sub-Deputy whom the Commissioner may recommend. Where they are so invested, it will be understood that the object is to allow them to keep up the judicial routine and dispose of very petty cases, while the Sub-Divisional Officer does active, executive and statistical work, or goes out to make judicial enquiries on the spot."

There can be no doubt that both Sub-Deputy Magistrates and Collectors and Canoongoes have been employed on judicial and criminal work to a far greater extent than was contemplated by the original instructions. It is not necessary to recapitulate the instances of this, which are enumerated by the Committee. The degree to which misconception as to the duties of these establishments prevails is sufficiently shown by the remark of one experienced District Officer, that in his district they might be expected to dispose of 650 criminal cases, and to make a local enquiry in 50 criminal cases in an ordinary year. The Lieutenant-Governor fully agrees with the conclusion of the Committee, that under no circumstances whatever should Sub-Deputy Collectors, whether vested or not with magisterial powers, or Canoongoes, be employed in the investigation of criminal cases antecedent to judicial enquiry. Wherever the practice of so employing them exists, it must at once cease. Similarly, as remarked by the Committee, Sub-Deputy Collectors have been too indiscriminately employed in the judicial disposal of criminal cases. The Lieutenant-Governor relies on Commissioners to use endeavours to check any undue tendency in this direction. He is not disposed at present to withdraw magisterial powers from the Sub-Deputy Collectors who have already been vested with them; though, should the present orders not prove effectual, it may become necessary to do so. In future, however, such powers will be conferred only in special cases, and on the recommendation of Divisional Commissioners. The Sub-Deputy Collectors and Canoongoes are primarily executive revenue officers and are chiefly to be employed in the interior on out-door work. The Lieutenant-Governor agrees also in the opinion expressed in paragraph 9 of Mr. Cotton's letter, that Sub-Deputy Collectors have been far too freely placed in charge of sub-divisional treasuries to enable the Sub-Divisional Officer to get away for an indefinite period on tour; and that it is expedient to revert to the old rule under which Sub-Divisional Officers are obliged to be at their head-quarters between the 1st and 7th of each month, for a time sufficient for the issue of pay, stamps, and opium. In cases where the work of a sub-division is sufficiently heavy to require the presence of a Sub-Deputy Collector, the latter may, during the absence of the Sub-Divisional Officer, be placed in charge of the treasure chest, but only with the special sanction of the Commissioner of the Division, to be obtained in each case; and it must be distinctly understood that the Sub-Divisional Officer does not thereby divest himself of his own personal responsibility for the treasury administration of his sub-division.

5. After careful consideration, the Committee concur in the unanimous opinion of the Divisional Commissioners that Canoongoes are a very useful agency, and they recommend their retention on the ground that the only alternative in the event of their abolition would be the increased employment of the more expensive class of Sub-Deputy Collectors. The Committee, however, consider that it would be expedient to reduce the number and increase the salary of these officers. The Lieutenant-Governor accepts the recommendation, and sanctions the following re-arrangement of the service. There will for the future be 17 Canoongoes on Rs. 75 per mensem; and 50 on Rs. 50. The present grade on Rs. 25 will be abolished. The result of these changes will be to reduce the number of Canoongoes from 81 to 67. It is hoped that the new grade now established on Rs. 75, acting as it will in the case of really competent officers, as a stepping stone to the grade of Sub-Deputy Collector, will be the means of attracting desirable candidates to the service, and of rendering its members contented with their position and prospects. The Board will take steps to give effect to the reduction ordered in numbers.

6. The general rule on the subject of the grant of travelling allowance to Subordinate Executive Establishments was thus laid down by Sir G. Campbell:—

"17. It is to be understood that ordinarily the subordinate establishments appointed under this Resolution will not draw travelling allowance, when in the interior of their districts, unless their work is of such a character that, in the opinion of the Commissioner, a travelling allowance is really necessary. Officers of corresponding rank in the executive department of other provinces do not draw travelling allowance; neither do Inspectors nor Sub-Inspectors of the Police Department."

Subsequently, on the recommendations of this Government, the following modifications were authorized by the Government of India:—

(1)—A travelling allowance of Rs. 1-8-0 a-day was allowed to be passed to all Sub-Deputy Collectors who might be employed on settlement work, or on other special duties for which the Divisional Commissioners might consider travelling allowance to be admissible.

(2)—A mileage rate of four annas a mile, when travelling by land or river, and one-and a-half annas by rail, was allowed on the understanding that such mileage should be passed only under special circumstances, and when specially recommended by Divisional Commissioners.

Canoongoes were also allowed to draw travelling allowance when specially recommended by Commissioners of Divisions, under the rules applicable to uncovenanted ministerial officers.
